MURDER IN RIVER MYSTERY

Great Welcome Home for Red Sox

Mayor Plans to Honor Flag Winners

MAYOR AND FORMER LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR LEADERS IN RECEPTION PLANS

Former Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham and Mayor Fitzgerald.

Welcome home to the Red Sox, pennant winners that are; world champions that are to be. Welcome home!

The Red Sox return to Boston from Detroit next Monday afternoon. They come home the pennant winners of the American League. Is Boston glad to welcome them? It is, and the fans want to show their glee.

The AMERICAN wants to see the biggest welcome home ever given a team by its home city. Let the suggestions come right along from the fans as to just what form that welcome home shall take.

Just to start the ball rolling, here are the suggestionse of two royal fans, Mayor Fitzgerald and former Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham:

By MAYOR JOHN F. FITZGERALD.

By all means let's give the Red Sox a royal welcome home. They have put Boston on the map for 1912 and their grand playing deserves the hearty support of every true lover of sport.

I don't believe in having our big celebration now. Just wait until we have annexed the title of World's Champions and then we can celebrate the two victories with some real enthusiasm.

When the boys come home next week we ought to get together, meet them at the train and let them know that Boston fans appreciate what they have accomplished. Gather at the station and march through the streets and let the rooters who have contributed to the victory by loyal support see how their heroes look after a triumphal western trip.

I will be glad to get in line and help swell the enthusiasm. We ought to have a band and a genuine old-fashioned good time. I am glad that the AMERICAN has taken up the idea, as I consider it a worthy tribute to men who have helped advertise our city more than anybody else.

There we have suggestion No. 1.

By LOUIS A. FROTHINGHAM,

Former Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts.

The Red Sox have played grand ball all season. Their playing has been consistent and steady. They are no flash-in-the-pan champions, but a splendid machine of fighting ball players.

I believe that we ought to pay them a deserved tribute when they come home from Detroit with the pennant early next week.

A parade from the station to some place where thousands of rooters could see the celebration seems advisable. In that way the players could see that we have a proper conception of the great victory they have accomplished and yet there would be nothing to unnerve them or put them off their stride for the coming great battle.

I will be glad to lend my assistance to any plans for a Red Sox reception. I also hope to see the world's series, provided I am successful in getting a ticket. The State and city can then join in giving the players the public thanks they deserve.

President Taft Up to Start His Busiest Day at Seven O'Clock

BEVERLY, Sept. 17.—This was President Taft's busiest day. He was out of bed at 6 o'clock, and on the job before 7 a. m. Among the mass of telegrams and letters for the attention of the secretaries was a wire from Thomas L. Lewis, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, who was recently nominated by the Republicans of Ohio, to be Secretary of State. The telegram thanked the President for the latter's congratulations on Mr. Lewis' successful fight for the nomination. It also prophesied President Taft would be re-elected by an overwhelming vote.

Charles and Robert Taft, sons of the President, returned to school today, the former going to a private institution and the latter back to Harvard, where he is studying law.

DETECTIVES GUARD RICH M'LEAN "BABY"

NEWPORT, Sept. 17.—"Baby" McLean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean of Washington, is having the exclusive attention of four detectives night and day while his parents are in Washington. Even when the boy goes automobiling he is guarded by a maid and detective.

Dakota Dan Russell today, on the witness stand at Cambridge, in his fight to prove that he is the long lost son of the late Senator Daniel Russell of Melrose, told of his boyhood recollections and of school days at Melrose. He recalled that a photograph was taken of him and his father, a Mr. Storey and his brothers and sisters in a meadow at haying time.

Lawyer Scharton called upon Lawyer Nason, counsel for William C. Russell, to produce this photograph. Dakota Dan said he had not seen this photograph since he left home as a boy. Friends of Dakota Dan say that if the photograph as recalled by the claimant is produced it will go a long way toward proving that he is the long-lost son.

Fresno Dan, the recognized son, did not appear in court today. He wired the AMERICAN from Chicago that he is having a good time and would return to the trial this week. There was a rumor that Fresno Dan returned to Boston today, but no one could be found who had seen him.

By CLEMENT L. POLLOCK.

The court room in which the famous Russell will case is being heard in East Cambridge was jammed today early. This is what brought out the large attendance.

The expected continuance of the disclosure of half century-old secrets of the home of the late Senator Daniel Russell from the lips of Dakota Dan, who swears he is the missing son and co-heir with his brother William to the half million dollar estate.

The expected reappearance of Fresno Dan, accepted by the Russell family as the returning prodigal, after a vacation in the West.

The attempt of William R. Scharton, attorney for Dakota Dan, to force William C. Russell to come to court and listen to Dakota Dan's recital of what he alleges is the true story of their home life.

Dakota Dan's friends seemed to multiply today. They swarmed to the court house. They gave the big, dark-faced Dakotah renewed assurance of their faith in him. They compared his story on the stand of the secret life of the Russells with that related by Fresno Dan. They compared his deep, explosive voice, which at times rumbled into a drone of unintelligible sound, with the voice of William C. Russell when he was on the witness stand and them with the voice of Fresno Dan. And then they declared that the Dakotan is the rightful heir and the Californian an impostor.

Confidence in "Dakota."

Even though he is under cross-examination by that cool and skilful lawyer, Robert Nason, Dakota Dan's friends welcomed the test. They declared Dakota Dan

LEADING BALTIMORE DEMOCRAT A SUICIDE

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 17.—George C. Morrison, a leader in Democratic political circles and a prominent financier, committed suicide today by inhaling gas at the Baltimore Athletic Club here. The suicide of Mr. Morrison comes within a few days of accusations made by Governor Goldsborough that Mr. Morrison and other leaders of the business and social life of Harford County, where he had a handsome home, had made misrepresentations concerning the Harford County racing bill in a public statement.

UP 3 MILES AND A HALF IN AEROPLANE

VILLACOUBLAY, France, Sept. 17.—All altitude records for aeroplanes were broken here today by Georges Legagneux, French aviator, who ascended 5,600 metres, or three and a half miles. The old mark was 16,340 feet, or 2,132 feet lower than the present record.

"L" INDICTED ON FOUR COUNTS FOR STRIKE COERCION

The Boston Elevated Railway Company, as a corporation, was today indicted by the Suffolk County Grand Jury in four counts, charging coercion of employes in connection with the recent street railway strike. In all four counts mention is made of the two labor organizations of Elevated employes, one known as the organization of "Loyalists" and the second of the union men.

The first count against the Elevated Company charges an attempt to coerce John J. Van Wart, an employe, into an agreement to become a member of the "loyalist" organization as a condition of his continuance in the employ of the Elevated.

The second count is the same as the first except that it mentions the name of Frank J. Maguire as the man alleged to have been coerced.

The third count charges coercion of persons unknown to the Grand Jury, and the agreement not to become members of a labor organization as a condition of their securing employment with the company.

The fourth count charges the coercion of men unknown to the Grand Jury not to join a labor organization as a condition to continue in the employment of the corporation.

There were two other secret indictments returned by the jury, one of which was for forgery and the other for a minor offence.

After the Grand Jury had reported Judge Raymond allowed the jurymen to return to their duties in the Grand Jury room where the investigation of the Lawrence dynamite case was resumed.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—The Red Sox and Cleveland Naps clashed in a double header today. Stahl's men are virtually certain of winning the American League pennant officially today as they need but one more victory in order to place the flag in the strong box.

The Red Sox cripples were feeling in good condition today and Stahl believes that all of his regulars will be able to take their place in the regular lineup when called upon after a few more days.

The Boston leader is planning to give some of his star men a rest after the pennant is won so that all of the men who are suffering from injuries will be able to get into the pink of condition for the world series.

William East, twenty-nine years old, of No. 2 Lincoln street, Charlestown, was found not guilty by Judge Brackett in Charlestown Municipal Court today of the charge of assault on Patrolman Michael Cox of the police station, that district, on Wednesday evening, September 11, following a political rally in Hibernian Hall. The government witnesses were unable to positively identify East as the man who struck the officer.

Doctors Think Woman Found In Water Was Slain

An autopsy at Beverly today on the body of the woman found floating in the Manchester River increased the belief that murder is at the bottom of the mystery.

Medical Examiner Stickney, who performed the autopsy, said that the woman was either brutally murdered or fell against a jagged rock and rolled into the water.

He declared death was not due to drowning.

GOLD WATCH MAY GIVE CLEW.

He thinks that the terrible bruises on the head and face were caused by a blunt weapon or by being thrown against the rocks.

Police Chief Converse of Beverly declared flatly that the woman was murdered.

The chief said he will immediately call in the State police.

He thinks the woman quarreled with some man while walking along the rocks and was slain.

The effort to identify the body was resumed vigorously.

Dr. Stickney says the woman was about thirty years old, probably married and the mother of one or more children, and that her shoes and watch may be good identification clews.

The watch is a lady's gold, open-face thin piece of inexpensive style. A peculiarity of the dial is that the numeral for the third hour is under the stem. Usually the "twelve" is under the stem.

The shoes have apparently a home made top on each sole.

Death Not Due to Drowning.

The autopsy was held in Samuel Gentice's undertaking rooms, rear No. 18 Putnam street, Beverly. Medical Examiner Stickney, Assistant Medical Examiner Sears, Dr. R. T. Glendenning and Chief Converse were present.

After the autopsy Medical Examiner Stickney said:

"This woman was either brutally murdered or fell against a jagged rock and rolled into the water. Death was not due to drowning. The lungs were in normal condition.

"The left side of the face and head are badly dented in. This may have been caused by being struck with some instrument or being thrown violently against the rocks, which resulted in concussion of the brain, followed by death."

The Medical Examiner, speaking of the description and condition of the body, added:

"The woman was probably married and the mother of one or more children. She was about thirty years old. She probably worked. Her clothes were plain. The skirt is of dark material. The waist is white. The woman's hair is brown, her complexion medium.

"She probably kept herself in excellent condition. The underwear is of good material. The body, except where the bruise shows on the head, is in good condition. The woman had been dead maybe less than a week."

Call in State Police.

Police Chief Converse said:

"I think the woman was murdered. Circumstances are so suspicious that I intend to call in the State police immediately.

"This blow that the woman received was given very violently. I believe she was with some man, walking along the jagged rocks. They got into some kind of a mix-up and he killed her with some blunt instrument."

The police believed the woman was murdered, either on one of the islands off the coast, or on a sail or motor boat, and cast into the sea. The tide carried the body into the river where it was discovered.

Manchester police officials today planned to make a round of the cottages on Baker's and Mystery Islands in an effort to ascertain whether any woman is missing from these places.

Body Afloat in River.

The Manchester river where the body was found is a narrow arm of the sea running into the land three-quarters of a mile through the town of Manchester. Captain Charles Olsen had his yacht anchored at the edge of the 300-foot channel opposite the shipyard of Walter H. Calderwood, and was on deck, when he saw it bobbing up and down on the waves.

He leaped into his tender, rowed ashore to get Mr. Calderwood and Joseph Slade, a fisherman, who went out with him. They towed the body ashore and lifted it out upon one of the railways of the shipyard.

Word of the find spread through the town. Many hastened to the shipyard to see the body. The police kept off the crowd and threw canvas over the corpse.

Examination showed that the face was disfigured and the jaw bone apparently broken, as if by a heavy blow. At the back of the head, just at the base of the skull was a small wound which appeared to be a bullet wound. Another wound above the left eye was thought to show where the bullet had emerged. The face was distorted, as if the woman had died in agony.

Denies Woman is Daughter.

The only woman reported missing at Manchester is Mrs. Benjamin Wade, who lived with her husband, a teamster, on Pine street up to four weeks ago, when she left, saying that she did not intend to come back. Her description tallied in many respects with that of the woman found and word was sent to her home.

Wade was away, but Mrs. Wade's father, Francis A. Brace, went to the shipyard. He declared positively that the body was not that of his daughter, and said that within the last ten days he had heard from her in a Western State.

Guarded by the police, the body remained on the railway until late. Then it was taken to Beverly.

The body is that of a woman; thirty years old; about five feet four inches tall; weighing 140 pounds; dressed in a white waist with lace insertion, dark colored skirt, black shoes and stockings; hands roughened by work; brown hair.

PICTURE MAY SOLVE RUSSELL WILL MYSTERY

DAKOTA DAN ON WITNESS STAND SUPPLIES NEW FEATURE IN CASE

whom Mr. Nason inadvertently addressed as "Mr. Russell," yesterday) could stand any test.

"Fresno Dan," has wired the AMERICAN that he will return to Boston this week. Here is 'Fresno Dan's" telegram to the AMERICAN:

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 17.
Boston AMERICAN:
Boston, Mass.:
Am having a good time in Chicago. Will get to Boston some time this week. DAN RUSSELL.

When the Russell will case was reopened yesterday "Fresno Dan" was not on hand. His exact whereabouts were unknown until the telegram reached the AMERICAN today from the recognized Daniel Blake Russell himself.

Attorneys for William C. Russell declared "Fresno Dan" would return, as he had only gone away for a vacation during the recess of the will hearing.

"Dakota Dan" resumed the stand for cross-examination when the will hearing was resumed today.

Joseph McNally, assistant to Mr. Scharton, at the opening of today's hearing stated to Master Pevey that it was understood that William C. Russell would be present when Dakota Dan testified and recalled that the Melrose "Silent Man of Gray" had been absent yesterday.

"If he does not appear," said Mr. McNally, "we shall have to find some way to get him here and keep him here."

"I have no jurisdiction in this matter," remarked Master Pevey; "counsel know their remedy."

"We do," responded Mr. McNally.

"Why he was absent yesterday," remarked Mr. Nason, "I am unable to state."

Dakota's School Days.

Just then Ferdinand R. Almy came in. Mr. Nason asked him whether William C. Russell would be present. Mr. Almy said he would, and Mr. Nason announced that Mr. Russell would be present later in the day.

With Dakota Dan on the stand, Mr. Nason went back to Dakota's school days. He brought out that the witness was taught by Miss Treadwell only one term.

"But I did not go steadily," put in Dakota Dan, "and sometimes I was absent a week at a time."

Mr. Nason tried to get Dakota Dan to recall the details as to how the school was called to order the first year he attended school.

"I can't remember all those details. It is too long ago," said the witness.

The witness could not recall whether or not there was a stove in the room his first year. He did know, however, that there were two blackboards in Miss Treadwell's school.

Dakota Dan was seven when he went to this school, so that it was necessary for him to go back more than forty years to dig up the facts that Mr. Nason wanted. Nason got the Dakotan angry by trying to pin him down as to the shape of the chalk used in Miss Treadwell's school.

"Did you ever see anyone write on the blackboard?"

"I don't remember whether I did or not, if that will suit you," snapped the witness.

"Did you learn the alphabet in Miss Treadwell's room?"

"I learned it some time during my life," replied the witness.

Learning the A, B, C.

Dakota Dan's answers as to the method by which he learned his a-b-c's were mostly made in tones of disgust. He could not understand, apparently, why Mr. Nason held him so long in the school room. Mr. Upton, of the Russell estate attorneys, and Mr. Almy, wrote down the fragmentary boyhood's story industriously. Dakota Dan's friends thought the line of questioning was funny and they tittered audibly.

"Did you make figures on the blackboard in Miss Cree's room?" asked Mr. Nason.

"I can't remember all those things," roared out the Dakotan. "I said I made figures the next thing you'd ask would be what figures I made."

Once when Mr. Nason was questioning the Dakotan about a school in Upham street, the witness answered:

"If you will keep quiet I will explain what I mean."

Mr. Scharton was kept away from the trial until nearly noon by other business. Then he walked into the court he carried a cane and sported a white flower in the lapel of his coat. He wore a purple tie and an aggressive smile.

"How did you study geography in the Dean street school?" asked Mr. Nason.

"With my brains," replied the Dakotan.

"Well," retorted Nason, "that showed some brain. What I mean is—what was its method?"

"I didn't have much method."

The witness recalled the names of a dozen or fifteen fellow pupils at Miss Cree's school and half a dozen or more at Dr. Upham's school.

Fresno Dan was not in court at 11:30. Scharton declared he has five witnesses who would identify Fresno Dan as somebody other than the man he pretends to be.

"How old were you when you stopped using short pants?" asked Mr. Nason.

"I don't remember how old I was, but I do remember when I first put on long pants because I had a small pair of boots that were too tight for me."

Mr. Robinson, who keeps a restaurant at Cambridge and Third streets, sent word to Dakota Dan today that he could have the meals there during the trial.

Remembers One Teacher.

The witness said he studied grammar in the Emerson School.

"By whom were you taught?"

"A woman who was called Cross-eyed Bisbee—I don't know what her other name was."

Nason tried to get the Dakotan to recall something about the questions he was asked in grammar.

"I could not remember things of that kind fifteen minutes after I recited them. I did not like grammar. I liked reading, writing and arithmetic."

Mr. Nason kept Dakota Dan back among his rather dim and distant school days. It appeared from the rancheman's testimony that he didn't care much for school and waited for school to let out with great impatience. While at his books, it appeared he dreamed most of the time about when he could escape the thraldom of study and be allowed free to roam the woods with dog and gun.

Even the examinations he was required to take made little impression on his memory. He quit school after his grammar school days. He never stood any real examinations, he said. The witness explained frankly that the examinations meant nothing to him and that if it had not been for his father's influence he and his brother would probably never have passed any examinations.

Impediment in Speech.

"I studied at home," said the witness, "because I did not like to read or appear before strangers at school."

The witness had a sort of impediment in his speech, it seemed, which made it embarrassing at public school.

"I wouldn't go to high school on this account," testified the Dakotan, "and father took me to see a Dr. Grady to see if he could fix my speech, but he wanted $100 and father wouldn't pay it. Later I went to Comer's Commercial School for a short time. I quit when father went to California in 1881."

Dakota Dan told of a boying picture which showed him, his father and Mr. Storey, the father of Charlie Storey, and his brothers and sisters. This picture was taken when the witness was about eighteen years old. This picture was taken in a meadow.

"I saw that picture loose in our album shortly before I left home."

"Did you testify about this before?"

"No."

"Why?"

"Because I never thought about it until this moment."

"Didn't you testify about it at your last trial?"

"No."

"Will you please produce that picture," Mr. Scharton asked Mr. Nason.

Mr. Nason did not promise to do it.

Dakota Dan said he thought a colored violinist named Fleming had one of the pictures.

This was the first time this picture has ever been mentioned in the case. The testimony given by Dakota Dan made a deep impression on his friends in the audience.

If this picture is presented in court it might go a great way toward settling the great dispute. Mr. Nason had apparently never heard of it before.

Neither Fresno Dan nor William C. Russell had appeared in court today up to the 1 o'clock adjournment. It was reported about the court house that Fresno Dan had reached Melrose.

DAKOTA DAN'S BOYHOOD

We sneaked our neighbor's apples
And ate his currants, too;
We caught unwary turtles
And put them in the stew;
We romped through silent woodlands
With arrow and with bow
When I knew Charlie Storey—
That's forty years ago.

I recall I had the measles,
And that my brother Bill
Would close down all the windows
For fear he'd get a chill;
And once I "tracked" the kitchen
But came to sudden woe,
When I knew Charlie Storey—
That's forty years ago!

The case hinged on the girl's age. It was first given as sixteen, but later it was learned she is between eighteen and nineteen.

DISMISSED VETERAN TAKES CASE TO COURT

Justice Sheldon of the Supreme Court today issued an order for a hearing on a writ of mandamus brought by George W. Smith of Lawrence against Mayor Michael A. Scanlon and the Board of Aldermen of that city. The hearing was set for Thursday, September 24. Haines Gets Extra License to Wed "the Richest Lynn Girl"

Samuel E. Haines of Philadelphia, doesn't propose to be short of marriage licenses when he comes North to be married on October 9, to Miss Elsie Baker Pinkham, the richest girl in Lynn.

Despatches today from Philadelphia say that Haines has taken out a Pennsylvania marriage license, though that document is useless for a Massachusetts bridal.

Haines went to the Philadelphia registry clerk and insisted on getting a license. "A Pennsylvania license is no good for your marriage in Massachusetts," said the clerk, "what you want is a Massachusetts license."

"Not on your life," said Haines warmly. "There isn't going to be any slip-up in this wedding. I want a license anyway. Maybe the Massachusetts license won't be any good."

Haines insisted so that the clerk gave him a Pennsylvania license, for which he paid one dollar.

Now it remains to be seen whether Haines gets out a Massachusetts license a week or so ahead of the marriage, so as not to be balked by the five-day law. It would be too bad, it is figured, to have the five-day law put a hitch in such earnest preparations.

GRAND JURY AGAIN HUNTS 'PLANT' FACTS

A Word From the Women's Shoe Shop

WE would not have decided to sell women's shoes in this new store had we not seen our way clear to do it better than it was being done generally.

Lest this statement seem too boastful, we follow it with an invitation to inspect the new shop for Women's Shoes and find all the fault you can.

Please do not let the inspection be cursory. Handsome fixtures and neat arrangement do not make a shoe shop. Try us out thoroughly. We will count it a favor to be permitted to show all the shoes we have in your size or at your price.

Walking Boots

If style is the first consideration, we can interest you with reproductions of London walking boots; with others that suggest to the knowing the boulevards of Paris; with our 'kidney' heel—a French heel that is really practical; with our new 'Priscilla Alden' pump; with new effects in suiting cloth tops; or with many other novelties not in other Boston shops.

If, on the other hand, comfort is more important here are special shoes for low insteps, for large ankles, for tender joints and for cold feet; arch support shoes that are anatomically correct; shoes with low heels and flexible shanks for women who stand or walk a great deal; and a separate section for shoes for elderly women.

As to Price

Should price be the first thought, we can show you shoes at $3 and $4 with style points borrowed from the usual $5 grade; a comprehensive group of satin-lined boots in all leathers, at $4 and $5; and the 'Filene Foot Glove' shoes, that excel anything we have seen at $3, in comfort, durability, lightness and flexibility. We think so well of 'Foot Glove' shoes that we sell them on a month's trial.

Just one limit: We have no shoes for less than the lowest price for which a good shoe may be sold. $3 is the minimum price for women's shoes; then up by easy stages—$4, $5, $7 to $10.

Today we have only hinted at what there is to be seen in this new Women's Shoe Shop on the fifth floor—one of seven shoe shops in this store.

If you have shoes in mind at all we can make your visit interesting.

FIND WIFE NO. 1 OF 'JACK' GRACE

Interest in the Grace murder mystery at Walden, N. Y., stirred in Massachusetts for the second time today with the discovery at Fall River of wife No. 1 of "Jack" Grace, for the slaying of whom Anthony William Grace, his brother, is now lodged in jail at Newburgh, N. Y. According to information given the police of Fall River today by the first Mrs. "Jack" Grace, the murder victim was himself a bigamist.

The Fall River wife of "Jack" Grace is Mrs. Nellie Chadwick Grace, a vaudeville actress and pianist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Chadwick of No. 340 County street, Fall River. In an interview today, the murdered man's widow told of being courted by Grace and of their marriage on November 5, 1904, in the Church of the Ascension in Fall River.

Both Were Bigamists?

The discovery of wife No. 1 of "Jack" Grace puts a new tangle in the absorbing story which has come to light since the husband was killed. It is the claim of the Newburgh and Walden authorities that Anthony Grace, who was known as "Bill," who is now under arrest, has two wives living, and that it is likely there is a third wife at present somewhere near Boston. Today's developments at Fall River indicated, the police claimed, that "Jack" Grace, who attempted to prevent "Bill" from committing bigamy, himself had two wives living, one in Newburgh and the other in Fall River.

The murdered man's Fall River marriage took place eight years ago. Last March, according to news dispatches from Walden today, he married Miss Helen Burger, known as Wife No. 2. Anthony Grace, the slain man's brother, was also married in Fall River, to his first wife. Escorted by New York detectives, Wife No. 1 of "Bill" Grace has identified the alleged slayer in the Newburgh jail as her husband.

Handsome Brunette.

Mrs. "Jack" Grace No. 1 was seen by a reporter today at the home of her parents in Fall River. She is handsome, about 28, and a brunette. She is well known in theatrical circles in New England, especially in Fall River.

"There isn't the slightest bit of doubt about the matter," declared Mrs. Grace, in the presence of her mother, in Fall River. "The murdered man in New York was my husband. I know it. I was married to him on November 5, 1904, in the rectory of the Church of the Ascension in this city.

Says He Was Brutal to Her.

"More than that, I am the first legally married wife of Jack Grace, the murder victim. There has never been any legal separation. I have several times tried to get a divorce from him, but this was rendered impossible because of his refusal to sign certain necessary papers. I was still his wife when he was slain, and I am now his widow. If he had another wife living in Newburgh, as the newspapers claim, then he was a bigamist.

"We had known each other since we were little children. He had practically become one of our own family. Mother always regarded him almost as one of her own children.

"Jack courted me and we were married. Then we went to New York city to live. There his treatment of me became brutal. I cannot find words to express just how brutal it was. He refused to work. He wouldn't lift his hand except to lie around the house and read the papers. He never did anything else.

Recently Wanted Her Back.

"While Jack was idling around the house, I was playing the piano from ten to twelve hours every day in a theatre in Jersey City. Then when I got home he always forced me to give up my pay to him. Finally his treatment of me became so bad that the neighbors threatened to interfere unless I left him.

"Then I left him. I could not stand it any longer. I came back home here to live with my parents. That was five years ago.

"Once, about three years ago, I had him arrested at Coney Island. The last I ever saw of him was two or three weeks ago when he came here to Fall River. He talked with mother. He said he wanted me to return to him. He pleaded with her, and then with me. I refused to go with him. That was the last I saw of him. The next news that came of him was the story of his being murdered.

"The next word to come was that he had another wife living in Newburgh. But I was his legal wife, for I never was legally separated from him. I wrote the police of Newburgh the facts, but have not heard from them."

Asks Bigamy Warrant.

Dispatches from Walden, N. Y., state that the Fall River wife has written the police there demanding the effects of the murdered man. It is also stated that the murder victim's property is also being claimed by wife No. 2.

Mrs. Annie Grace of Fall River, one of the wives of Anthony Grace, the slain man's brother, has sworn out a warrant against her husband charging him with bigamy. She visited her husband in the Newburgh jail and identified him as the man to whom she was married in Fall River.

MERRIMAC BOARD IN AUTO CRASH; 3 SERIOUSLY HURT

WEST NEWBURY, Sept. 17.—Three members of the Merrimac Valley Waterway Board, who were badly hurt when their automobile crashed into a telegraph pole on Sawyer's Hill, are getting comfortably. They are:

Lewis R. Hovey, Haverhill, legs and face cut.

A. B. Sutherland, Lawrence, dislocated hip and possible internal injuries.

Richard J. McCormick, Haverhill, cut and bruised.

The chauffeur and a friend, whose names are not known, escaped unhurt. As a result of the accident the work of the board, which had many hearings scheduled, will probably be delayed for several weeks.

GEN. SICKLES BARS WIFE FROM HOUSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—General Daniel E. Sickles has literally turned his wife, from whom he has been estranged for twenty-seven years, from his door, although she pawned her jewelry to raise money to pay his debts that the auctioneers might not sell the roof over his head.

When Mrs. Sickles and her son, Stanton, called at the general's house, No. 23 Fifth avenue, a few hours after Mrs. Sickles had paid the Lincoln Trust Company the $8,200 owed by her husband, they were met by servants who told them they must not enter. The orders were that neither Mrs. Sickles nor her son was to be allowed within the Sickles home.

Seely Quadruplets Start Their Seventh Week

THE SEELY QUADRUPLETS SNAPPED IN THEIR INCUBATOR.

This picture of the four little Dorchester girls who have broken the world's record for quadruplets shows them just as they pass the days wrapped up in their incubator in the Hillside Hospital across the street from their parents' home at No. 60 Sawyer avenue. The two in the centre are sleeping. Their sisters are crying after having been put back after a "free air" period outside the incubator.

Physicians Say They Have Little Doubt Some or All Will Survive.

The world's champion quadruplets, born to Mrs. Thomas H. Seely, of No. 60 Sawyer avenue, Dorchester, and which have come to be known as the most famous "double twins" ever born, have lived through their sixth week and today marked the opening day of their seventh week.

The four tiny girl babies are in the pink of condition, literally and figuratively, and have thrived and prospered wonderfully. They are now in the Hillside Hospital, at No. 51 Sawyer avenue, Dorchester, across the street from the Seely home.

Boston physicians say the quadruplets are the most wonderful medical science has ever heard of. Usually quadruplets have never lived beyond three or four days. The Seely girlies have done so splendidly that the physicians say now that they have little doubt some or all of them will grow up.

The quadruplets within the past six weeks have gained from six to twelve ounces in weight. Last week they were quietly removed from the Dorchester Cottage Hospital to the Hillside Hospital so as to have them nearer their father and mother. The babies had strengthened so that it was possible to remove them for periods from their incubator. The babies were today reported to be thriving under the change to longer and longer "free air" periods for them.

The babies who were known as Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 are now known by the names given them by their mother—Virginia, Eleanor, Barbara and Louise. These names have not as yet been officially recorded at City Hall, so that the mother may change them if she thinks it advisable. However, it is likely the quadruplets will grow up as Virginia, Eleanor, Barbara and Louise Seely, as everybody seems to think the names are tiptop.

HARVEY WILEY, JR., AT 4 MONTHS, HAS TOOTH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Harvey W. Wiley, Jr., four months old, son of an exceptional father, has proved that he is a chip of the old block by developing a real, sure-enough tooth. Baby and tooth are doing well. "I hope he'll be careful what he puts that tooth into," was Dr. Wiley's comment.

ART MUSEUM LOCKS CASES

The officials of the Art Museum today took new precautions to prevent a repetition of the recent thefts of miniatures and other treasures by putting locks on the cases where the small art works are kept.

A reporter who watched the work of guarding the rare old hooks, cups, weapons and miniatures noticed one case was entirely empty.

"Is that where the miniatures were stolen?" he asked of the caretaker, "Yes," was the reply.

Inquiry at one store in Boylston street disclosed the fact that the man who solved the secret of the hidden spring which opened the cases had called there ten times in the past two weeks trying to sell the loot.

Daniel O. Lavery, a well dressed and rather clean cut young man, was arrested for the theft and held for trial. He was charged with having stolen nine miniatures worth $70 each and eleven Japanese lacquer boxes valued at $100 each.

It would appear that the prisoner disposed of some of this plunder to persons in the street or in the Public Garden, by the following advertisement published today:

If the persons who bought miniatures of a young man on the street or in the Public Garden, Boston, early in September, 1912, will return them to the office of Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire street, Boston, they will receive the amount which they paid for them and no questions will be asked.

It is said that the prices paid by the purchasers of these stolen pieces of art, whose total value was estimated at $1,750, were ridiculously small.

In the meantime the mystery as to how Lavery gained access to the miniatures in the case has not been disclosed.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the quality newspaper.

MISS FOLEY HAS BATTLE OF WITS IN STREET MEETING

Miss Margaret Foley, opening the Massachusetts Women's Suffrage party's campaign in East Boston, entertained the crowds that gathered by her lively repartee and quick responses to the heckling questions hurled at her.

Miss Foley had heard that David L. Walsh and Messrs. Prendergast and Sorensen were to hold outdoor meetings. She boarded up her car with committee members and started.

Floating from her auto was a new pennant of light blue, with "Women's Suffrage Party" inscribed upon it.

OPERA COMPANY ON KEITH'S BILL

"What is it," said Mr. Mullen to Mr. Coogan, "that grows bigger the more you take away from it?"

Deep thought by Mr. Coogan. Fells to find the right answer, of course.

"A hole," replied Mr. Mullen.

Well, well. Probably you've heard it before, yet the audience at Keith's Theatre last evening seemed to enjoy it more than anything else on the bill. Sometimes it seems the old ones go best.

Then there is the Romany Opera Company, who were here several years ago. They are back again with their Grand Opera selections, gigantic Alexander Bevan with his "Drinking Song," Edwin Stedden in the Toreador selection, and all the rest, a troupe of one dozen very capable singers.

In fact, there are numerous singing acts on the bill this week, one of the most catchy being the efforts of Gus Van and Joe Schenck, who have a neat little turn with the piano. Harry Pack and Mabelle Lewis appear in a rather similar performance with piano, a little dancing and some singing.

One of the most attractive numbers is a one act comedy named "Honeymoon Among Thieves," in which a quartet of young men get into numerous trying situations concerning a roll of $5,000, stage money.

A juggling act by the Alpha troupe, Miss Bobbie Gordone in living pictures, and the Jungman troupe in tight rope performances contribute to the variety of the entertainment.

One of the pleasant surprises is the appearance of Boston people in the weekly news moving pictures. The film shows Hirtle Boston girls in the recent Scottish clan festivities in this city, and the dancing of some of the well known local Scottish girl dancers proves a most attractive conclusion to the program.

"Woman Haters' Club" Proves a Hit

American Premiere for Tuneful Play

"It Was Marie" Threatens to Be Hit of Sparkling Entertainment.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

If you are not whistling "It Was Marie" today, be not distressed—your lips will be puckering into the tantalizing tune before the week is ended. For such is the course of events when a new operetta drops a popular waltz song into your friendly ear.

In justice to Mr. A. H. Woods, who sent "The Woman Haters' Club" to the Tremont last evening, it may be said that a great deal more than a popular song fell into the embrace of the big first-night audience. The evening was so full of good entertainment, brilliantly dressed and skilfully presented, that the matter of being threatened with a popular waltz melody became but an incident to those in the house.

"The Woman Haters' Club" will take its place as the first of the season's new musical plays to reach positive success, as Mr. Woods will discover as he watches the box office develop increased activity as the nights roll past. It is an entertainment that is too attractive to be missed by any follower of easy-to-take amusement—which includes everybody from the serious minded citizen, who is sometimes hard to please, to the rah rah boy who is eager to satisfy if the front row of the chorus is fair to look upon. "The Woman Haters' Club" will reach them all.

We have been sadly imposed upon by many European importations that were proclaimed better than "The Merry Widow" and "The Chocolate Soldier," and in the light of past experience we might be pardoned for not taking every advance announcement at is solemn word. In the case of "The Woman Haters' Club," however, there was no disappointment—and no false promises. It sparkled like fresh champagne; it was delightfully musical without descending to the frothy appeal of ragtime, and it was genuinely consistent and inviting in its story. Its comedy was light and airy and deliciously free from vaudeville jokes.

Splendidly acted by the most finished cast of players that has been lured into musical comedy for many months, "The Women Haters' Club" began its American career at the Tremont with everything in its favor. It cannot fail to impress the playgoer as an entertainment distinctly worth his attention. There was an atmosphere of harmony about the production that concerned not only the music of Edmund Eysler, but also the staging of the piece, which was directed by George Marion. The book and lyrics, adapted by George V. Hobart, left nothing to be desired.

It was emphatically easy to take kindly to Miss Dolly Castles, who made her first appearance in a strange land with this merry play. She was a girlish as a schoolgirl and exceedingly easy on the eyes. Sallie Fisher, too, managed herself gracefully and, in spite of a bad cold, reached all of the high notes required of her. It might also be remarked that she was something of an extraordinary success for her dressmaker.

Walter Lawrence appeared very much at home in a role that carried him into frequent outbursts of song, and Joseph Stanley was grounded to that last hair as a juvenile lover. Mr. Stanley and Miss Castles made light work of their evening's task.

Mrs. Stuart Robson was both ample and amusing and Seitz Edwards extracted more than his share of laughs from a minor role. Leslie Kenyon was another faithful worker for the good of "The Woman Haters' Club," contributing a garrulous Englishman that was alone worth the trip to the theatre.

It was remarkable, too, that none of the principal players lost their bearings under the stress of a difficult first performance.

"The Woman Haters' Club" was lavishly staged, with every movement of the chorus in good taste, and the principals working not only surely but in a safe direction. The piece cannot fail to prosper. And you'll be whistling "It Was Marie" before Saturday noon.

"WOMEN HATERS' CLUB'S" PRINCIPALS.

BANDITS HOLD UP TRAIN; GET MAIL WORTH $30,000

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 17.—Four bandits held up and robbed the New York and Memphis fast mail and express on the Southern Railway at Stevens Gap, Ala., at 1:30 a. m., gagged and bound the four mail clerks and got away with all the valuable registered mail. Postal authorities say the loss will reach $30,000. The express was not molested, nor was a single shot fired. When the train stopped for coal one bandit rapped on the mail car door, saying: "Open it, this is McMahon, the conductor."

The door slid back and the mail clerk looked into the barrel of a revolver. One bandit jumped into the car and ordered all hands up.

James Flint, one of the mail clerks, attempted to pick up a Winchester rifle and the bandit told him quietly to "forget it and fall in line."

The train ran about fifteen miles and one of the men pulled the cord, applying the air brakes.

Conductor McMahon discovered the mail clerks bound.

'THIRD DEGREE' AT CASTLE SQ.

"Three generations of a family in society turns red blood to blue," said Miss Mary Young in her impersonation of Mrs. Howard Jeffries, Jr., in "The Third Degree," Charles Klein's stirring four-act drama, which opened a week's engagement at the Castle Square Theatre last night. This retort, given to a question propounded by John Craig, who took the part of Attorney Richard Brewster, elicited loud applause from the audience that filled the house.

Miss Young was so natural in her impersonation of the part allotted her in the drama, and her lines so clearly enunciated, that she won the sympathy of the audience from the start and retained their fancy until the final curtain. Her role, a difficult one, fits her to a nicety and gives an opportunity to put in her best work.

Mr. Craig handled his lines in such a manner that, coupled with his mannerisms in the performance, proved interesting and instructive. His psychic research work in wringing from Police Captain Clinton, impersonated cleverly by Walter Walker, the facts in the case for which he was engaged as counsel, was immense. Mr. Craig's work demanded care and caution in its presentation, and the keen way in which he handled every line and syllable brought home to the minds of the audience that point which the play endeavors to point out—the mistake of the police in getting innocent persons to admit guilt.

Miss Lazrett, in the role of Mrs. Howard Jeffries, Sr., did splendidly. She put her heart into her work from the start and compelled the admiration of the audience by the graceful way in which she composed herself during crucial periods of her acting.

Every person in the cast showed their mettle in making the most of hard parts. Especially was this true of the part of Captain Clinton, who gave the "third degree" to Donald Meek in the role of Howard Jeffries, Jr., in the first act on the charge of shooting Robert Underwood, characterized in an efficient manner by George Henry Trader. Others who shared in the honors of the evening were Leslie Palmer, Al. Roberts, Carney Christie, S. H. Bancroft, Egbert Munro, Albert Lerol and Miss Sylvia Bladen.

Globe Theatre.

Plenty of comedy and many novel features make the current week's program at the Globe attractive. DeWare Circus, with its funny "human roulette wheel" and unridable mule, furnished a lot of fun. The ponies, mules and dogs were well trained. Prescott and Kimball offered a pleasing singing and piano novelty. "Cigars for Sale," and Bert Prescott's piano playing proved heavily. Watson and West pleased with their slugging and dancing, and Dave Rafel's comic ventriloquial production, "On the Farm," amused the audience. Karl Green proved himself a competent "lightning palnter," and all of the other features, including the Rays, the Song Review and the new pictures were well received. The entire program, with the exception of DeWar's Circus, will be changed on Thursday.

Gaiety Theatre.

The new week brought a lively group of entertainers to the Gaiety Theatre yesterday. "The World of Pleasure" was all that the name implies and Will Foy and Harry Stewart managed to keep things moving without any apparent effort. They were comedians with a laugh concealed in every gesture. Few burlesque attractions have attained the popularity of "The World of Pleasure," and the reason is found in the general excellence of the cast and the good material that is supplied in the burlesque. The songs were attractive, the specialties spirited and the girls good looking. What more could be asked?

Grand Opera House.

"The Pacemakers" moved into the Grand Opera House yesterday and made merriment for two audiences. A score of girls added their laughing presence to the performances.

MISS TERRY SCORES IN PLAY AT LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, Sept. 17.—Miss Ethel Grey Terry of the St. James Theatre Company of Boston, who arrived in Lawrence Sunday to take the leading part in the production of "Madame X," given by the local stock company, and who went through a series of the most arduous rehearsals for hours, acquitted herself gloriously and gave a strong portrayal of the much wronged woman at today's performance. The leading woman of the local company was taken ill Saturday and for a time it seemed as if the theatre would have to close temporarily. M. H. Gulesian, the manager of the St. James Theatre, Boston, consented to Miss Terry's going to Lawrence to take the role of Madame X, which she has played before. Miss Terry could be spared from the St. James Theatre this week, as she was playing but a small part in the production of "Thais," which was taken by one of the other members of the company.

BECKER QUITS IN FIGHT ON VENUE

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Lieutenant Charles A. Becker, indicted for the murder of Gambler Herman Rosenthal, surrendered today in the fight for a change of venue, and announced through his chief attorney, John F. McIntyre, that he would be ready to go on trial before Justice Goff in the criminal term of the Supreme Court here on October 7.

Mr. McIntyre made his announcement when he visited the criminal courts building to submit to Justice Goff for approval a list of about 500 questions which are to be asked the witnesses in Hot Springs, Ark.

"We will be ready for trial on October 7," said Mr. McIntyre, "and will not ask for a change of venue."

Justice Goff today continued his hearing of witnesses to determine the facts about the arrest of "Dago Frank" and "Lefty Louie," who were taken in Brooklyn for the murder of Gambler Herman Rosenthal.

Assistant District Attorney Moss has intimated that he believes Deputy Commissioner Dougherty and others have held back letters incriminating the Rosenthal slayers, which were hidden in the Brooklyn flat.

Justice Goff called into his chambers Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, Sergeant Young, his secretary and Detectives Tunge, Myers, Casasasa and McKenna, all of whom were members of the police squad that took "Gyp" and "Lefty" into custody.

It was learned that Dougherty turned over to Justice Goff a box containing papers, memoranda and other documents found in the gunmen's flat which Mr. Moss said had furnished the prosecution "some evidence of importance."

"Lefty" said that once he and "Gib" decided to give themselves up. They went to Grand and Centre streets, where they stood almost within the shadow of police headquarters, debating whether or not they ought to give themselves up.

Finally deciding to wait until they could make some arrangement to provide for their wives the two gangsters returned to Brooklyn. They had been seen by hundreds of policemen, but not one recognized the two men for whom a reward of $5,000 dead or alive had been issued.

TWO HOLY JUMPERS FINED FOR ASSAULT ON GIRLS' "RESCUERS"

WAREHAM, Sept. 17.—Special Officer A. C. Covell and John A. Taylor were fined $10 each for assault and released in $100 bail on appeal as the result of a service at the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene, of which both are members. It was declared Dudley L. Brown and Gus J. Schroeder entered the church on Labor Day to aid two young women, one of whom was apparently unconscious on the floor, and the other uttering frantic cries, and were attacked by the defendants. The defendants testified they believed the young women needed help, but that the Rev. Gordon G. Edwards, pastor of the church, and some of the members explained the young women had the "power." This sect is the one known as the "Holy Jumpers."

Crawford Ranges

You can cook with any stove if you use time enough, work hard enough and burn coal enough—but in these days time, comfort and coal are important items. Therefore we believe that the range that is the greatest saver of time, labor and waste is the one the housekeeper of today wants—and she gets it in a Crawford.

Have you ever examined one? Do you know why it bakes better than other ranges? Will you let us send you our illustrated pamphlet that tells why? It describes the wonderful Single Damper (patented); the Oven perfectly heated in every part by the scientific heat flues; the Ash Hod that takes the place of the old clumsy ash pan; and other Crawford improvements that save time, trouble and money.

T. R. WOULD CALL EXTRA SESSION

TUCSON, Ariz., Sept. 17.—If Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is elected President he will at once call a special session of Congress to enact the laws affecting industrial problems that he has advocated during his campaign. This definite promise was made here today to an enthusiastic crowd of Progressives that had gathered to greet the Colonel.

In a brief outline of his program made more definite than any yet given out, the Colonel said that, first, he planned to extend the new order of things to the government service, then to the District of Columbia, where regulation of corporations could be attempted, then to Alaska and finally to business in interstate commerce. The Colonel, speaking earnestly and emphatically, told the crowd that he was in earnest in his purpose to find a way to curb the corporations and readjust conditions so that the wage earner would get the advantage of definite government supervision of big business.

HELEN FARRELL OF QUINCY, BRIDE OF F. J. PENDERGAST

The marriage of Miss Helen M. Farrell of Quincy and Frank J. Pendergast of Dorchester, athlete and swimming instructor, which took place at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, today, is the result of a swimming romance.

The bride is a swimmer. About a year ago she was one of the guests at a house party in Quincy. There she met Frank J. Pendergast, swimming instructor at Carson Beach, Dorchester. He is a son of Sergeant James E. Pendergast of Dorchester police station.

Naturally the talk turned on swimming. "You come up to Carson Beach some time, Miss Farrell," said Pendergast, "I am swimming instructor there and we will go in."

Miss Farrell went to Carson Beach and plunged into the waves with Pendergast. It was a much longer plunge than either figured on at the time, for it led eventually to the sea of matrimony.

Miss Farrell came to Carson Beach often that Summer. When Winter arrived there was no swimming. But that didn't interfere. Pendergast was gymnastic instructor at Columbia Road Gymnasium and Miss Farrell found that gymnastic drill was just what she needed. Pendergast found that Columbia Road Gymnasium was just the place where one received the best training from the instructor.

And so the love match proceeded by easy stages. The engagement was announced, and today brought the marriage.

William P. Pendergast, brother of the bridegroom and star pitcher for last year's Colby College nine, was best man, and Miss Anna Farrell, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

MARSHALL USES LAWRENCE FACTS

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 17.—Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, Democratic nominee for Vice-President, denounced the high protective tariff and pointed to facts revealed during the Lawrence, Mass., mill strike, in a speech here. He declared the policy "gave tariff beneficiaries a monopoly on products and free trade on labor." The Governor said:

"A word will suffice for the revelation of conditions at Lawrence, Mass., where wage earners getting $7 a week were insulted by the advice to open up an account with a trust company. Such information as the government has been able to obtain by its tariff board shows that the labor cost of weaving a yard of cloth is 5 cents, while the tariff duty for the benefit of the laborer is $1.02. Who got the other 97 cents?

"Figures compiled by the United States Immigration Commission reveal that three-fifths of the workers in our protected industries have come to the United States from southern and western Europe since the reason was advanced that we must have a high protective tariff for the benefit of the American working man.

PELLETIER DECLINES DEBATE WITH KILEY

District Attorney Pelletier will not debate his conduct of the district attorney's office with Daniel J. Kiley, formerly president of the Common Council. Kiley challenged the District Attorney to an open debate, saying Pelletier was incompetent and had used his office in an attempt to get, he believed, into the chair of Governor.

Declining the Kiley challenge today, District Attorney Pelletier says:

"Why should I debate with Daniel J. Kiley. Nobody cares what he thinks or says. The more conspicuous the opposition of men like Kiley, the sooner people will realize what I stand for in public office and represent in the Democratic party."

TWO WOMEN AMONG 100 NEW LAWYERS

Justice Sheldon of the Supreme Court today administered the oath to 100 of the 172 persons who passed the bar examination. Two of the successful ones were Miss Anna Poffer and Miss Rosamond Levy. Justice Sheldon announced another examination for admittance October 4. Among those admitted today were Philip J. Peisberg of the office of the Superior Court, Michael Hart of Ward 8, an attache of the Civil Court; Representative John J. Connolly; John P. Manning, Jr., son of Clerk Manning of the Superior Criminal Court; William Dolan, brother of Arthur Dolan, registrar.

Political Notes

Governor Foss is more under the weather physically than he ever was just prior to a political campaign. "I'll be back on the stump by Wednesday," the governor chuckily answered when asked about his condition. The truth is that Governor Foss has been overdoing himself for months. Despite the advice of friends he has persisted in a round of official and political affairs that have taken him all over New England.

Colonel Roosevelt goes to Maine October 3 and 6. His down east manager, Colonel Frederick Hale of Portland, believes that Maine will go Bull Moose in November. "It's just like this," says Colonel Hale. "The Colonel will get the Progressive vote that elected Haines and he'll get also thousands of Democrats who will not vote Plaisted. That will carry Maine for Roosevelt."

Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham is one of the boomers of Governor Wilson to come into Boston and report growing Democratic sentiment in their localities. There is no mistaking the Mayor. He is always carefully groomed and never without a shiny silk hat. The mayor of Medford, Mr. Hurley of Salem, the tile is worn squarely set on the head.

Miss Elizabeth Piper and Mrs. Richard Washburn Child are the women organizers for the Roosevelt Progressives. Daily the two ladies meet representatives of women's clubs from all over the State. "We'll have women's clubs organized in every ward of Boston by next week," Mrs. Child declared today. "And then we're going all over the State."

The Massachusetts primaries come on September 24. With more contests on in both parties than ever before, this promises to be a strenuous week for the campaigners.

It's just dawning upon Republican standpat leaders that President Lewis Stackpole of the senate will have a hard time being re-elected. The Moosers are out with double-barreled guns here and there. Greenwood. They'd take as much satisfaction in bringing about his defeat as they would in defeating "Joe" Walker.

Governor Wilson comes to Boston September 26. By that time Democrats hope the smoke of the primary battles will have cleared away and that a solid State Democracy will greet the presidential candidate. Governor Wilson wisely deferred his trip to Massachusetts until after the primaries. He would have found himself in a needless simulator to what he bumped into in New York.

Foss rallies will be held tonight in Wards 5, 18 and 24. Mayor Fitzgerald, David I. Walsh, Chairman Riley, John R. Murphy, Congressman Murray, Sheriff Quinn and others will speak. The Ward 24 rally will be in Walnut Hall, Neponset. The others will be in the workrooms.

John R. Murphy was the principal speaker at a rally in the Ward 20 ward-room, held in the interests of candidates for the House and Senate. A. R. Kelly presided.

Ex-Representative Thomas Ryan, John Kelleher and Henry J. Mahoney spoke at Foss rallies in Cambridge last night. Chairman Riley, at a Foss rally in Somerville, called the followers of District Attorney Pelletier "disgruntled office-seekers." Congressman Murray, Mayor Fitzgerald and others addressed the 400 persons at the rally.

Daniel J. Kiley, accusing District Attorney Pelletier of using his office for political ends, has challenged the District Attorney to a joint debate. In his statement Mr. Kiley charges the District Attorney with "incompetence, extravagance, a failure to appreciate the dignity of his position and spending the people's money for outside counsel while he was collecting thousands for outside services on the county's time."

Five hundred voters of Ward 3, Charlestown, heard District Attorney Pelletier speak. He declared Governor Foss is a large holder of railroad stock and accused him of secretly favoring the interests.

As the result of postal card canvasses, doing away with party conventions, Charles S. Bird, it is announced, will head the Bull Moose State ticket. There are five aspirants for second place, and the announcement of the ticket is expected to be made today or tomorrow. The Women Progressives have opened their headquarters at No. 70 Devonshire street, and sent out a call for help from all Boston women interested in the movement.

Congressman Curley has issued a statement announcing that he will support District Attorney Pelletier for the nomination. He predicted that Pelletier would carry Ward 17, three to one, and at least twenty-two other Boston wards.

Matthew Cummings, candidate for the nomination for sheriff against John Quinn, toured South Boston and Dorchester, making a dozen speeches in all.

Joseph Walker opened his Lynn campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination last night, speaking at a reception and meeting at the Heyenoord club.

President Joe Maynard of the city committee was on the stump as usual last night and talked with his customary enthusiasm even though his place of business was burned out yesterday, entailing a personal loss to him of several thousands of dollars.

The sensational fight in Wards 18, 19 and 22 is now raging fast and furious. Senator Timilty is out on the street corners every night trying to cut into the Supervisory strength in Ward 19, while Representative McInerney with his lecture and stereopticon views is doing his best to break down the Timilty strength in Wards 18 and 22.

Over in Ward 15 Representative Michael J. Reidy, who is fighting for another term on Beacon Hill had a number of open air rallies last night and five more are scheduled for tonight. Before next Tuesday he expects to speak at more than fifty meetings.

Dakato Dan Russell's counsel, William R. Scharton, is taking an active part in the primary contests on the Democratic ticket. He is speaking nightly for Joseph Benson, candidate for the House in Ward 24, and for Representative John F. McCarthy in Ward 19.

Ex-Alderman J. Frank O'Hare is on the stump every night trying to defeat Councilman James M. Curley for renomination. The Congressman, backed by the city machine, is making a quiet campaign and proposes to make but one speech in each ward in the district.

The Joyce-Callahan Senatorial fight in the Fourth District is expected to get down to real business this week. Senator Joyce yesterday interceded with Mayor Fitzgerald to prevent his opponents from securing all of the ward rooms in the district, but the Mayor refused to interfere.

John A. Anderson, Democratic candidate for the House in Ward 20, spoke at eight neighborhood rallies last night, addressed three open air rallies and wound up a strenuous evening's campaigning with an address at the Ward 20 ward room.

WOMAN'S CRUSADE OUSTS POLICE CHIEF

CHICAGO Sept. 17.—Mayor Wozneyzaki, of West Hammond, is sitting on the lid today. Chief of police Tulcyka is hunting a job and tonight a new head of the police department will be inducted into office. All this is the result of the anti-graft crusade headed by Miss Virginia Brooks. The crusade reached a dramatic climax in the hearing last night before the city council in which the police chief was ousted. Deputy sheriffs were called upon to preserve order.

ENGINE JUMPS RAIL AT SOUTH TERMINAL

The engine of the New York, New Haven & Hartford passenger train arriving here from Providence at 9:07 today jumped a switch at the entrance to the South Station trainshed. The front wheels of the engine left the rails and bumped along on the sleepers for a short distance before the train was stopped. Passengers got out and walked the short distance to the shed.

IOWA FARMERS HEAR WILSON

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Sept. 17.—It was drizzling when a reception committee today scrambled aboard Governor Wilson's private car at Onawau, but the skies cleared as the Governor reached the State fair. The Governor discussed the necessity of enforcing the pure food laws.

At Morningside College the Governor addressed the students and then made an automobile tour of the city. The Governor leaves by special train for Sioux Falls, South Dakota, late this afternoon. Groups of farmers greeted him at the small stations on the approach to Sioux City. The Governor discussed crops with them from his car.

ODDS HEAVY ON WILSON IN WAGERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—At Schumann's Cafe in Brooklyn a wager of $100 to $1,000 was made that President Taft will not receive a single vote in the Electoral College. Bets of $3,000 to $1,500 and $500 to $500 were made that Wilson will be the next President. Another bet of $200 to $100 on Wilson was made.

WALSH URGES VOTES FOR FOSS

David I. Walsh, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, pleaded for the renomination of Governor Foss in an address at a big Foss rally in the wardroom at the old Court House on Washington street, Brighton.

Among the other speakers were Mayor Fitzgerald and John R. Murphy.

Mr. Walsh said that if Massachusetts was to go Democratic this year it would be necessary to select the strongest men, from the gubernatorial office down to Representative.

"No Republican Governor has ever been denied a third nomination. We now see the pitiable sight of a successful Democratic Governor obliged to go out into ward rallies and beg the rank and file of the party to give him the nomination," said he.

Speaking of his own candidacy, Mr. Walsh said that when he is elected Lieutenant-Governor he will not read the riot act to people when they come to the State House on business.

MARRIAGE OF MISS WELLMAN BLOCKED BY FIVE-DAY LAW

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 17.—The five-day marriage license law "forbids the banns" at the wedding of Miss Rebecca Wellman, daughter of Walter Wellman, the balloonist and writer, to Frederick B. Aubert of Washington, assistant engineer of the dirigible America, set for yesterday, and caused a postponement till tomorrow.

The marriage was to have taken place in St. John's Episcopal Church. Friends who arrived to witness the ceremony are forced to wait over here.

Mr. Aubert was one of the heroes of the disaster in the balloon America in October, 1910, and a short time afterward the engagement of the couple was announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt are quartered in their houseboat in the Thames, in England, awaiting the birth of the hoped for heir.

As soon after the birth of the child as the young mother's condition permits, Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt will take passage for America, where on October 20 Mr. Vanderbilt will celebrate his thirty-fifth birthday. Then he automatically comes into possession of a sum estimated at $25,000,000. It will make him one of the financial powers of the country.

To get one of the prizes read the terms, and then fill out one of the enrollment blanks.

It is as simple as A-B-C. After you have filled out the blank, send it to the Contest Editor, and he will credit you with 1,000 votes. That is a good start.

Now heed carefully. The rest is just as easy. The contest is open to every man, woman and child in New England. The circulation of the AMERICAN is greater than 400,000 daily and Sunday, but it should be more than 500,000 Sunday. So, in order to reach this figure the readers of the AMERICAN and the residents of the New England States are asked to help get this mark.

You are not asked to do the work for nothing. Every man is worthy of his hire. Send in the coupons that you find in the daily and Sunday AMERICAN. The coupon in the daily AMERICAN will give you credit for five votes. The coupon in the Sunday AMERICAN is good for twenty-five votes.

But there is still another way to pile up the votes.

Get some subscriptions. If you do, it means additional votes and in goodly numbers. Just get the subscriptions for the SUNDAY AMERICAN, not for the daily.

If you get the Sunday subscriptions it means something good. See here. Each subscription for the Sunday AMERICAN—and it must not be for less than six months—will count you 1,500 votes.

This is how it is graded:

Length of Subscription.	Guarantee Required.	Vote Credit.
6 Months	25 Cents	1,500
12 Months	50 Cents	3,500
36 Months	100 Cents	7,500

Every person in New England has a chance to win. Try for the $10,000 prize. Just think what you can do with that amount of money. Money makes the mare go. But that is an old-fashioned way of traveling. That much money will make a good automobile go. It will buy a good home. It will send boys and girls to college. It will give the children a fine start in life. It will make somebody happy. So will the other prizes. They are so easy to get.

Read the conditions carefully.

READ CAREFULLY---THEN ENROLL

The Contest The Boston AMERICAN'S $40,000 Contest is a subscription and voting competition which is open to every man, woman and child in New England, irrespective of age, except employes of the AMERICAN and their families. Forty thousand dollars in Cash and Prizes will be awarded. The contest opens Sunday, September 22, 1912, and ends February 28.

The Candidates Every man, woman or child who is a legal resident of New England is eligible to compete. Participation in any previous AMERICAN contest does not debar anyone.

The Enrollment Each candidate must be regularly enrolled from his or her permanent address on the ENROLLMENT BALLOT provided for that purpose, which appears daily in the AMERICAN.

The first Enrollment Ballot received before the contest opens on Sunday, September 22, will count for 1,000 votes. Only the FIRST ENROLLMENT will count for a vote credit.

The Vote Coupons Vote Coupons from the daily or Sunday AMERICAN will count. One vote coupon will appear in each issue of the AMERICAN (daily and Sunday) during the life of this contest. Each vote coupon in the daily AMERICAN will be good for 5 votes. Each vote coupon in the Sunday AMERICAN will be good for 25 votes.

Each vote coupon will be good for two weeks from the date printed in the AMERICAN and valueless if received after two weeks.

Vote coupons should be tied together in bundles of 100, keeping the 5-vote coupons separate from the 25-vote coupons. All contestants are requested to use a rubber stamp containing contestant's name and address and district number. Only the top three or four coupons in each bundle of 100 need be stamped. Votes should be sent in one bundle, with contestant's name and address and district number and the total number of votes said to be contained in package marked on the OUTSIDE of the WRAPPER.

The Subscription Plan A vote credit will be allowed for subscriptions turned in for the Sunday AMERICAN (subscriptions to the daily AMERICAN will not be received).

You do not have to collect subscriptions in advance, but as an evidence of good faith each Sunday AMERICAN subscription turned in must be accompanied by a small cash GUARANTEE payment.

The GUARANTEE payment is required to make the contest absolutely fair and equal to everyone, and as an assurance of good faith of the subscriber in giving the order and of the candidate in turning it in. The GUARANTEE PLAN will help all candidates greatly, because only a SMALL AMOUNT in cash is required, and that simply as an evidence of good faith.

Length of Subscription.	Guarantee Required.	Vote Credit.
6 MONTHS	25 CENTS	1,500
12 MONTHS	50 CENTS	3,500
36 MONTHS	100 CENTS	7,500

This cash guarantee, in each case, will be deposited with the AMERICAN'S Auditing Department as an evidence of good faith on the part of both subscriber and contestant. Every person who subscribes to the Sunday AMERICAN agrees to accept and pay for the paper regularly at the regular newsdealer's rate during the term subscribed for. The guarantee received in each case will not apply to the cost of the subscription until near the time of expiration. All subscribers must begin to pay for the paper regularly, beginning with the newsdealer's first delivery, with the understanding that the guarantee paid in each case will be deducted from the cost of the LATTER PART of the subscription in copies of the Sunday AMERICAN without charge TO THE AMOUNT of the guarantee (whatever it might be).

Delivery of Papers Each subscription blank will contain a blank space in which subscribers may write the name and address of any newsdealer or newsboy whom subscribers may prefer to have deliver the paper.

Just as soon as subscriptions are received at the Contest Department an order will be sent to a newsdealer or newsboy in subscriber's district, giving instructions for immediate delivery of the Sunday AMERICAN for the term subscribed for. The newsdealer will then start delivery of the Sunday AMERICAN and will collect from subcriber each week, except for the term at the LAST END of the subscription, covered by the guarantee paid, at which time he will deliver copies of the Sunday AMERICAN without charge to the value of the guarantee amount paid.

The Winners The one who receives the largest number of votes, irrespective of districts, will be awarded the capital prize. The ones who receive the largest number of votes in each district will be awarded the prizes as scheduled. In the event of total votes for any contestants who win being tied, similar prizes will be given to each winner so tied.

Special Notice The AMERICAN will not be responsible for any subscription sent in through the mails in any form other than postoffice money order, express order or certified check, addressed to American Contest Department, P. O. Box 3047, Boston, Mass. Cash sent through the mails will be sent at the risk of the person sending it.

Votes cannot be transferred from one contestant to another after receipt of same by the AMERICAN.

No person can win more than one prize.

The AMERICAN reserves the right to amend these rules and conditions from time to time, if it may seem necessary, in order to protect all contestants from any possible contingency which may arise.

The Contest Editor will decide all disputed questions carefully and in good faith, and his decisions shall be final and conclusive.

Transportation Past and Present

John Wanamaker first delivered his goods by means of wheelbarrows. Now he uses

One Hundred Autocar Delivery Vehicles

On the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the John Wanamaker Stores, October 28th, 1911, Mr. Wanamaker, in a speech to his employes, said:

"The founder of this business has frequently been pictured in magazines and other publications as delivering packages at the homes of customers in a wheelbarrow way back in the '60s. If necessary, I would now deliver my packages in a wheelbarrow or an express wagon, only I would get them there. But today the swift and silent automobile delivery wagons deliver the goods quickly to our customers' doors. The contrast between the wheelbarrow and the automobile is no greater than the contrast of doing business in 1861 and 1911. The contrasts in the next twenty-five or fifty years will be even greater, and the man who sticks to his wheelbarrow instead of using the automobile of improved and better methods will make about the same progress, in comparison, as would a wheelbarrow and an automobile."

We sold John Wanamaker his first Autocar three years ago. His order last month for TWENTY AUTOCARS was his SEVENTH REPEAT ORDER to take care of his increased business.

Seven hundred other individuals and corporations bear testimony that the Autocar has been a good investment

GIBSON'S TRIAL SET FOR SEPT. 30

GOSHEN, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Attorney Burton W. Gibson, charged with the murder of Countess Rosa Mesachik Szabo, was arraigned before Judge Herbert B. Royce here today and his hearing was set for September 30. The prisoner's wife was present, being the only woman in the courtroom. She was deeply affected when the charge was read.

District Attorney Rogers said he would frustrate Gibson's plan to have the case cleared up at the preliminary hearing by presenting only enough evidence to warrant holding the prisoner for the grand jury. Judge Royce urged on Gibson the advisability of getting counsel, but the lawyer declared he would waive all rights to counsel for the time being.

Through the testimony of Frank Menschik, a Vienna postal clerk, who arrived in New York from Europe today, the Austro-Hungarian consulate expects to clear up the mystery surrounding the family of the Countess.

Frank Menschik is a brother to the Countess, according to the contention of the consulate. He has not seen his sister for eighteen years.

Sweethearts of 35 Years Ago Are Wed; Man Is 70, Bride 68

A love that endured through thirty-five years and was not discouraged when its object twice married, was consummated when Elmer S. Harris, a seventy-year-old Roxbury business man, married Mrs. Sarah M. Robinson, sixty-eight, in Haverhill.

The two were sweethearts before Mrs. Robinson's first marriage, and they were smiling like sweethearts when they approached the home of the Rev. George K. Goodwin and informed him that they wanted to be married. The groom's hair was white and thin and the bride, gowned in black, glanced from beneath a small black bonnet.

She has been married twice before, both husbands having died.

The romance began when the two were children in Maine. Harris planned to marry the sweetheart, but after a slight misunderstanding the match was declared off and she married another.

Years later he learned that her husband had died and that she had become married again. Shortly after the news that Mrs. Robinson was again a widow reached him. He lost no time in resuming his acquaintance.

BELFAST RIOTING LIKE CIVIL WAR

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Belfast has been in what The Daily News (Radical) describes as a state of civil war. In nearly all the principal factories and in the shipyards there have been brutal scenes.

In the morning, when the Catholic workmen returned to Harland & Wolff's, they met with sneers.

Notwithstanding that the works were surrounded with military and police, after work had been in progress for an hour, Orangemen paraded from one department to another threatening what would happen in the course of the day, and so menacing was their demeanor that hundreds of men went home.

One ship, on which a large number of Catholics were employed, was completed during the day, and on the launching after the dinner hour to another part of the river. It was arranged that the electric light was to be switched off and an attack on the Catholics made in the darkness.

A friendly Orangeman warned his Catholic friends, and none of them returned after dinner.

In the yard of Workman & Clarke there were similar scenes, and one man, named Maguire, who was beaten and kicked while an attempt was made to throw him into the river, lies in a hospital seriously injured.

At the same yard one of the players of the Celtic team came in for very rough treatment. On the Catholic side feeling runs high. In one of the foundries, where a majority of workmen are Catholics, the Protestants, who up to yesterday had not been interfered with, received from some nasty wounds were inflicted with iron bars and other weapons.

WOMAN HURLS SELF 7 STORIES TO DEATH

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Miss Julia Wood, thirty years old, jumped from the seventh floor of the West Point apartments on West Ninety-fifth street to the rear court yard, and was killed. Her father is said to be H. O. Wood, chief of the bureau of the navy department in Washington. Miss Wood had been ill several months.

THREATEN FIGHT IN A.F.L. SESSION

FITCHBURG, Sept. 17.—The annual convention of the Massachusetts State Branch, American Federation of Labor, convened in the Fitchburg A. C. building at 10 a. m. today for its second day's session, and immediately adjourned to 2 p. m., pending the report of the committee on resolutions. It was rumored the committee was at odds over an effort to introduce an indorsement of Governor Foss.

Martin T. Joyce, secretary-treasurer of the State branch and not a member of the committee on resolutions, said after adjournment:

"There will be something doing if they try to indorse any candidate. We condemn, but never indorse, unless it be a labor candidate. I understand E. Gerry Brown is here to speak for Foss. There will be those there who will see that no indorsement is made."

E. Gerry Brown, of Brockton, is the State supervisor of loan agencies, who was appointed to the office by Governor Foss. He is a prominent labor man.

The committee on resolutions was in session last night at the Fitchburg Hotel till a late hour and resumed its secret session early today. Up to this noon the committee was still wrestling with its resolutions.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 5,000 more than its next richest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

PHILADELPHIA FINES STRAW HAT MOBBERS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—The police, with the assistance of two magistrates, have expunged September 15 from the calendar as the last day for wearing straw hats. The department started out fifteen policemen in civilian clothes, with straw hats. The police were almost mobbed by persons who had designs on the straw headpieces. Thirty-five young men were either held in $200 bail each to keep the peace of fined $7.50 and admonished.

SPENCER'S BODY IS CREMATED

Bertram G. Spencer, the Springfield youth, was electrocuted in the electric chair at the State prison in Charlestown this morning at 12:18:02, for the murder of Martha B. Blackstone, a Springfield school teacher.

As he entered the death chamber, and was about ready to take his place in the chair, he was asked by Warden Bridges if he had any statement to make. He stood with head erect, hands clasped before him, and with perfect self-possession said in a loud, clear tone of voice:

"I wish to say to the world and to the press that this is not a display of nerve. The love of God has sustained me. Good night."

With the words "Good night," and a smile, he faced about, took his place in the electric chair, was fastened with the straps, and the death-dealing current was flashed through his body.

His last request, just before he was called to begin the death march, was that his body be cremated and the ashes be interred by his mother. The body is now at the Forest Hills crematory. Services are to be held this afternoon.

The ashes are to be kept at the crematory until his mother or some other member of his family comes from Lebanon, Ct., to claim them.

Spencer entered the death chamber at 12:16:30. He walked with head erect and unassisted. He was perfectly self-possessed. On one side of him was Guy C. Perkins, the Christian Science reader from Springfield, who has spent the last few days with the condemned man, in an effort to bring his mind to a peaceful state. On the other side was the Rev. Herbert W. Stebbins, the prison chaplain. But Spencer did not need their assistance.

The witnesses were Warden Benjamin F. Bridges, Deputy Warden Nathan H. Allen, Prison Physician Joseph L. McLaughlin, Dr. George B. Magrath, medical examiner for Suffolk County; Dr. C. C. Foster, Surgeon-General of the State Militia; Dr. A. C. Aldrich, assistant prison physician; Guy C. Perkins, the Christian Science reader from Springfield, who had been acting as Spencer's spiritual adviser; the Rev. Herbert W. Stebbins, the prison chaplain; Thomas M. Clancy, for the press, and three members of the death guard, in addition to the electrician.

After making his statement, Spencer sat himself firmly in the chair, leaned back in an easy position and the guards adjusted the electrodes.

Up went the gold-headed black cane that the venerable warden carried. The electrician, with watchful eye, caught the signal, the switch was thrown into place, and 1,900 volts coursed through the body of Spencer.

EARNEST ADVICE

From a Woman Who Suffered from Lack of Blood and Who Has Recovered Perfect Health.

Bloodlessness is one of the greatest enemies of growing girls and young women. So stealthily and gradually does it afflict them that the disease is often well advanced before it is detected. Therefore it is important to note the first symptoms and check the thinning of the blood.

Miss Helen J. Pounds, of No. 929 Libby street, Toledo, Ohio, who cured herself of anemia with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, says: "I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for I am in better health than in years. Since I was a girl in my teens I suffered from anaemia and headaches. I never received benefit from the doctors. To tell the truth I don't believe they knew what ailed me. My digestion was poor and I had difficulty in keeping anything on my stomach. I had an abnormal craving for various articles of diet which I had to satisfy. There were awful pains in my stomach. I had very frequent spells of dizziness when I would have to sit down and rest. I was terribly nervous and couldn't stand any noise. I was very restless and some nights couldn't sleep for more than two or three hours. I had cold feet, blueness of the eyes and through the top of my head. I suffered from pains in the side.

"After a year's sickness I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. From the first I began to gain color in my cheeks and gain in weight and strength. I kept on with the pills until I was cured. I am perfectly well now, weigh more and am stronger than ever before in my life. I am in perfect health and am sure that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were the very medicine needed in my case."

A helpful booklet, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free to any address on request. It will show you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have accomplished in cases like your own.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have repeatedly cured anaemia, indigestion, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica. All druggists sell them or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Why the Red Sox Pitchers Are the Greatest

Bill Carrigan Gives His Opinion of Them

By BILL CARRIGAN.

I HAVE been asked many times how our pitchers compare with the New York Giants' hurlers. Also, whether I think the Giants will be easy. I would answer that if I could, but how can I when I have not seen the Giants play? It is true we beat them in 1909, but that was three years ago. The Giants have changed since then, and so have we.

If there is a better pitching staff than ours I would like to see it. In my days as a catcher I have made it a point to pay close attention to all twirlers, but I doubt if there is any team that ever had a greater staff of pitchers than ours.

You take Joe Wood. I never saw Johns Hopkins work, but if he had more speed than Joe, then he sure was a wonder.

Joe was a raw youth when he joined us, but it didn't take him long to master the game, until now he is without a superior—and that goes for ALL the pitchers.

Wood will beat the Giants sure if we only get one run for him.

Some may think the youngster can't stand the right spots, but he showed how he can travel the day we beat Walter Johnson, 1 to 0. No one ever pitched a more nearly perfect game than Joe that afternoon. It was a treat to see him whipping that fast one across and fooling the batters whenever he was in danger.

His fast one is a dandy. Speed, though, is not all Joe has. If he wants to he can curve them as big as the next, and he has a slow ball, too. I won't say that Joe is the greatest pitcher in the league, because there are other pitchers with us and I consider each a star.

Collins and O'Brien are Great.

I don't know how good Marquard is, or any other National southpaw, but if they can stop Ray Collins, then I'm willing to quit. Here's a boy they all overlooked in the Spring. He wasn't right in the early part of the season, but he is going at top speed right now and should be in great shape for the World's Series.

When you start to talk about spitball pitchers don't forget "Buck" O'Brien. I don't wonder why the batters can't find his "heater," because I can't myself. All I do is to signal for a certain kind and stick my glove in the spot where I believe it will land. Sometimes it doesn't.

The best part about "Buck" is that he is full of nerve. You can't rattle him, and when the "splitter" is going as it should you can't touch him.

Charley Hall didn't need any developing when I first saw him. With a little more luck he'd have all the pitchers writing about his record, too.

Without doubt I consider Hall the greatest pitcher in the game today to go in at the finish.

They say Ed Walsh stars in this line, but I'll take Hall for mine. He has saved many games for us—those that do not show in his record, either.

Bedient a Wonderful Youth.

For a youngster who has been in the big leagues as short a time as Hugh Bedient you don't find them any better. I really can't tell what he has. Everything is about the best answer. And he isn't finished yet. He is just coming.

I never saw a bunch of more willing boys than our pitchers. Every time they have been called upon to work they have gone in without handing out any talk of ailing. They're always ready to go on the job, and that's why we have been at the top so long.

I can't analyze the weak or strong points of the Giants' staff, but if they have anything better than our boys then I'll be glad to see them.

If it is up to our pitchers to win this world's championship, then we have it won.

I am glad that I am one of the catchers and can help them out.

Spirited Contest by Claimants for Spencer Reward

A spirited legal battle is promised between the two claimants for the reward offered for the capture of Bertram G. Spencer, who went to the electric chair after midnight at the State Prison. Charles L. Simons and Mrs. Edgar C. Pierce, both of Springfield, where the burglaries occurred which culminated in the murder of Miss Martha B. Blackstone, are the claimants. Twenty-five hundred dollars was offered for the capture of the fugitive, $1,000 by a citizens' committee, $500 by the city and $500 by the State. No claim has been put in for the latter sum.

Mrs. Pierce and Mr. Simons have been unable to agree on a division of the money, and the woman has announced that she will die suit against the citizens' committee. It was Simons who found the B. G. S. locket that led to Spencer's arrest.

'No Real Artists Now, Fail to Use Eyes,' Mrs. Chapin Holds

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

There is nothing wrong with the art of today save that the artists need to get their eyes cleaned out—purified.

So says Mrs. Mary E. T. Chapin, who is known as a sculptress, besides being accomplished in other lines of art.

"The real artist strives to paint more than what the mere external proclaims. He looks deep into the soul and gets real expression.

"The artists of today lack imagination. Education has killed imagination. In the days of old artists worked more from the spiritual. They gave their imagination free range. Today the artists work with the commercial value of their art in mind. Education has killed most spontaneity and has destroyed the imagining faculty.

"It is true of the majority of our present-day artists that they have eyes and see not. Truth is beauty and beauty is truth, yet how many people see it? How few works of art we have in Boston that are really true works of art. When I last visited the salon in Paris I was asked by a proud Parisian what I thought of their art and their wonderful exhibit. I told him frankly that I didn't think much of it.

"There are really no artists today. Take the days of old. Look at the Sistine Madonna, for instance? What have we that can compare with it? Take even a hand of some of those old statues and it proclaims art—real art in its every line. One hand of the old masters is worth a whole statue of the present day sculptor.

PARIS STARTLED BY DIAMOND-STUDDED MONOCLE OF BEAUTY

PARIS, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Philip Van Valkenburgh, the $100,000,000 widow, whose domestic troubles have kept herself and her husband, the rich New York banker, in the newspapers for two years, has startled the town by wearing a diamond-studded monocle in her eye.

It is considered difficult to surprise Paris, but a diamond-studded monocle is new even to the Parisians.

This jewelled bauble—for nobody pretends that Mrs. Van Valkenburgh's bright eyes need any artificial aid—glitters and gleams in the sunlight and persons wonder how the fair wearer can be comfortable. Mrs. Philip Van Valkenburgh was formerly Mrs. Lee Agnew, wife of an inventor, she divorced him and married the late William Hayes Chapman. He died within a few months leaving the young widow a fortune reported to be $10,000,000.

On November 23, 1909, the "$10,000,000 widow" was secretly married to Philip Van Valkenburgh. She brought suit for divorce within a year. But in February, 1911, it was reported that Mrs. Van Valkenburgh had withdrawn her suit. Last summer she began suit for $100,000 to restore to her years' living expenses since she separated from her husband.

FIND WATCHMAN DEAD, VICTIM OF GAS

James Donald, fifty-five years old, of No. 192 Somerville av., Cambridge, a night watchman for the Cambridge Gaslight Company, was found dead today from gas poisoning. His body was discovered in the office of the University Land Company, adjoining the gas plant, where Donald passed much of his time. It is presumed he fell asleep and accidentally kicked open the valve of a gas radiator.

NEW PROBE OF HACKETT DEATH

READFIELD, Me., Sept. 17.—That a sensational new turn in the Mattie Hackett murder case is promised, is the belief of those who have been following the work of the authorities.

Despite the fact Mrs. Elsie Raymond stands indicted for the murder of pretty Mattie Hackett and her trial set for early October, detectives have been employed to run down certain stories that have been in circulation here.

After this investigation, witnesses who had previously testified in the case were, this week, it is alleged, called before the Grand Jury which completed its deliberations last night. The new evidence, it is understood, pertains to a theory hitherto undeveloped.

Those in a position to disclose anything are reticent. It is said that persons who were closely associated with Miss Hackett up to the time of her tragic death have let drop certain remarks.

There are very many here who believe Mrs. Raymond is innocent and that the new evidence will tend to prove it.

OPEN SEASON FOR HUNTING ACCIDENTS

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Sept. 17.—The first hunting accident of the season recorded occurred here when William Kendall was accidentally shot by Frank Preston, his brother-in-law, as the latter carelessly handled a gun he was carrying. Some of the shot passed through Kendall's nose. Dr. F. L. Wellman of Bristol dressed Kendall's injuries.

Cooper's New Discovery

The Best Stomach Medicine

Nearly half the people nowadays are simply dragging themselves through life. They feel dull and listless, and are generally speaking "a bunch of nerves." The strain of modern living is the cause of this condition. We do everything in a hurry and nature cannot stand the pace.

Are you one of these half-sicks? Have you an irregular appetite? Do you feel bloated and uncomfortable after eating? Do you feel languid and tired all the time? Do you suffer from headaches? Have a bad taste in your mouth, or coated tongue? Is your breath offensive? Do you suffer from biliousness?

If you have these symptoms your system is in a weakened condition and your stomach, liver and kidneys need attention.

Cooper's New Discovery

is restoring health to thousands who are thus afflicted. If you are one of these unfortunate sufferers you will do well to give this medicine a trial.

Cooper's New Discovery is the one best remedy, because it is simple and direct. It puts into wholesome action the stomach, liver, bowels blood system and nerves, thereby restoring the vital forces which have been unduly exhausted through lack of proper nutrition. Thus you will be restored from dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, loss of vigor, constipation, anaemia, despondency, gastric disturbances and most of the diseases which attack a weakened system.

The human body will cure itself of almost anything if nature is given a chance. When every meal digests properly, flushing the veins with good rich blood, clearing away the impurities, feeding the nerves and muscles as nature intended they should be fed, you will feel like a new man.

COOPER'S NEW DISCOVERY WILL DO THIS.

GAANDA HUMANUS AMERICAN VISITOR

Gaanda Humanus, the wonderful mechanical man, visited the AMERICAN office this afternoon, after he had driven a pair of horses from the National Theatre through the crowded business section of the city unassisted except by electric currents controlled by the Manchester brothers, inventors of the figure which has been declared to be the wonder of the twentieth century. Gaanda Humanus, although unable to talk or think, has visited every Hearst newspaper office in America. The figure, which is about seven feet tall, weighs 310 pounds.

BIG TIM SULLIVAN'S WIFE DEAD, SENATOR IS HIMSELF ILL

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Mrs. T. D. Sullivan, wife of State Senator "Big Tim" Sullivan, is dead at her home on West Seventy-second street after a lingering illness. Her husband was not at her side when the end came, being himself confined to bed in a heath resort up the State. Mrs. Sullivan had been ill for several years. Reports of the estrangement of Big Tim and his wife have been in circulation for many years.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 200,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

BOSTON TODAY 282 YEARS OLD

Dame Boston is 282 years old today and never looked better, in the opinion of her friends.

To put it differently, today is the 282nd anniversary of the founding of Boston.

Dame Boston is looking forward to her 300th anniversary eighteen years hence. Then the venerable lady will have a perfect whale of a celebration.

Today was also the semi-centennial of the battle of Antietam.

A picturesque story of the great battle of Antietam Creek is told in the Cosmopolitan Magazine for October by General Nelson A. Miles, one of the survivors, like General Hooker, a son of Massachusetts.

"Fighting Joe" did not win his great renown at Antietam. McClellan lost his reputation by dilatoriness. There was more or less bickering and there were many jealousies. Hallerk had been doing what he could to check McClellan; McClellan seemed similarly disposed towards Burnside, Burnside was jealous of Hooker, and so it went.

"The Battle of Antietam," General Miles says in his Cosmopolitan reminiscences, "will ever be regarded as a drawn battle and possibly that was the best result for that time.

"Had the invasion been successful and the Union Army been defeated, the political cause that divided our people would have remained and the great Republic been destroyed; on the other hand, had the Southern army been captured, it would probably have ended the war or at least resulted in a compromise, leaving the vital cause of the war to vex the people of this country for possibly another century.

Emancipation Followed.

"While the war was not inaugurated to disturb the institution of slavery, as it progressed slavery became a vital question and so firmly did President Lincoln become convinced of this that he registered a solemn vow that if the Union forces succeeded in driving the invaders from the soil of Maryland he would issue a proclamation giving freedom to nearly 4,000,000 slaves.

"Though still defiant, and ready to fight if attacked, Lee soon led his gray-clad veterans back to Virginia and five days after bloody Antietam, Lincoln issued his Emancipation Proclamation."

SNEAD SAYS STORY WILL WIN ACQUITTAL FOR BOYCE'S DEATH

AMARILLO, Tex., Sept. 17.—John Beal Snead, who shot and killed Al Boyce on the streets here, broke his silence in the Potter County jail. His statement was made just as the funeral of young Boyce was being held. Snead between cigarette puffs calmly declared:

"When my trial for killing Boyce is held I am positive that the story I shall tell will win me acquittal by the jury and the public. I will win me sympathy. It is I who have suffered most. My act was pardonable."

Snead's attorneys declared Al Boyce had been writing Mrs. Lena Snead in an effort to induce her to elope with him for a second time, and that time take Snead's two children with them.

HAVERHILL GIRL TWICE SEEKS DEATH

HAVERHILL, Sept. 17.—Edith Tufts, who attempted suicide when she saw her sweetheart walking with another girl, today was on the road to recovery. The girl, in sight of scores of people, jumped from the county bridge into the Merrimac River. Rescued by Joseph Albanese, a shoe worker, she again sprang into the river, but once again was saved.

CONTINUATION SCHOOL OPENS FOR SEASON

Actress Rube Marquard's Bride M'Graw Boils on Hearing News

MRS. RUBE MARQUARD (SHIRLEY KELLOGG).

Boston Fans Speculate as to What Effect Event May Have in World Series.

Those Boston fans who are getting ready to put their money on the Red Sox in the world's championship series are wondering today whether their chances are any better than they were three weeks ago when Rube Marquard let up on his winning streak of nineteen straight victories in the box for the New York Giants.

For Rube has joined the ranks of the Benedicts. It has been quite a year in baseball for bridegrooms, and matrimony hasn't always helped along a pennant winning pitcher.

Marquard's marriage three weeks ago to the beautiful Shirley Kellogg, his partner in vaudeville last Winter, and more recently the leading lady in "The Follies of 1911," is one of the most interesting as well as unusual events in the history of major league baseball.

Seldom have the fans been so astonished as they were by the news that the great pitcher of the Giants had taken a bride at the close of the pennant race, and just before Muggsy McGraw's portentous finger was to participate in the world's series with the tossers who guard Fenway Park prestige.

The couple had been engaged for some time, but Rube simply couldn't wait, according to all accounts, until the end of the season before claiming his bride.

It is said that his mother first gave out the news that they were married about three weeks ago in New York.

Mrs. Marquard, Sr., confirmed the story of the wedding, anyway, at her Cleveland home, today.

And our scrappy friend, the manager of the Polo Ground favorites, is said to have boiled over when he heard the echoes of the wedding bells, and it is further alleged that said John McGraw has not cooled off yet.

Just now he thinks entering matrimony is a pretty serious offence for one of his star pitchers. He thinks a young man's fancy ought to turn lightly to thoughts of love in the Spring instead of the Fall—just as William Shakespeare used to say.

Mrs. Marquard is considered one of the most beautiful women on the stage, and no doubt Mr. McGraw will relent and give his managerial blessing before the season has ended.

CUTTER RUSH IS ORDERED RETIRED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The veteran revenue cutter Rush, which for years patrolled the Bering Sea in search of illegal sealers, was ordered retired from duty today, and will be offered for sale within a few weeks. The Rush was built in 1874, was rebuilt in 1885, and is a wooden ship of 700 tons.

She will give place to the new cutter Unalga, which will have to steam 22,000 miles from Newport News to reach her station.

3 DEAD CELEBRATING MEXICAN FETE DAY

PHOENIX, Ari., Sept. 17.—Police Chief Moore, Policeman Williams and Scott Price, a young American, were killed here in a riot between Mexicans over the celebration of Mexican Independence day. The two policemen were stabbed to death. Naturalized Mexicans and unnaturalized Mexicans got into a dispute over the celebration. Williams attempted to quiet the trouble.

Stage Marriages? No! 18 Too Many for Mr. Edwardes

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Matrimony for Gaiety girls will henceforth be hedged about by a contract binding them not to wed during the term of their theatrical engagements.

George Edwardes has been driven to issue this edict by the series of matrimonial alliances with sprigs of the British aristocracy and others into which the bright stars of his choruses have entered. The anti-nuptial contract applies to all Mr. Edwardes' companies — Gaiety, Daly's, Adelphi and touring.

Mr. Edwardes had to take this action, according to his manager, Mr. Malone, as the question was a very serious one. In one season in one company there were eighteen brides.

PREDICTS CRIMINAL FACE FOR BRITISHERS

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Dr. Forbes Ross, a famous English physician, according to the Daily Mirror, says that owing to the falling off in the number of children among the better classes and the tendency among the dissolute and uninteligent to multiply out of all proportion, the face of the average Englishman finally will be that of the typical criminal, with a broad flat nose, canine teeta and a depraved, gorilla-like countenance.

INDICT FORMER SAUGUS TREASURER

LAWRENCE, Sept. 17.—The Essex County Grand Jury has presented an indictment against Joseph S. Mescom, formerly treasurer of the town of Saugus, charging him in twenty-two counts with larceny from the town, aggregating $7,910.41.

Save a Small Amount Monthly and

SECURE A SURE INCOME FOR LIFE

The limited number of Profit-Sharing Certificates now being offered by this Company UPON THE MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN are fortified by PLANTED pineapple land, grapefruit trees, buildings and other property assets, many times the excess of the amount required for the safety of the investment. These profit-sharing certificates draw 10% from the raising and sale of pineapples, the dividends on the certificates being paid before the Company itself can receive any profit from this source. Surely no investor could ask for better protection.

FURTHERMORE, IN ADDITION TO THIS 10%, we plant seven grapefruit trees for each certificate issued, and extra dividends will be paid continually from this source as the trees bear fruit and increase in bearing capacity. THESE DIVIDENDS ADDED TO THE 10% FROM THE PINEAPPLE PROFITS, will make the total annual income from dividends amount to very large and satisfactory proportions, unusually stable, and lasting for more years than a lifetime.

IF BOSTON COMMON

Were planted to twenty-eight hundred grapefruit trees, in the tropical climate of Porto Rico, and there stored thousands upon thousands of bushels of fine grapefruit, a good idea of what our plantation looks like under cultivation in the above-mentioned products.

Note—There are approximately 50,000 pineapple plants and 1,500 grapefruit trees already planted. Pineapple plants bear fruit in 18 months, grapefruit trees in the fourth year from planting.

Tremendous profits have been, are being and will continue to be made in the fruit-raising business, especially in the Tropics (for example, note what the United Fruit Co. has done for its investors in the way of dividends in the past few years).

SAVE $5.00, $10.00 or more monthly for a short period

You can then secure an annual income for greater than the ordinary rates of interest by purchasing one, two or more profit-sharing certificates.

This Company is Conducted by well-known New England men of experience and integrity, and the co-operative plan is one of common sense and square dealing for all who become interested, and the estimated profit have been carefully guarded. The Isle of Pines is recognized by dealers and consumers generally, that the Isle of Pines is producing the finest grapefruit and pineapples in the world.

Hundreds of people now living on the Isle of Pines, as well as other reliable people who know of this enterprise, will testify as to its truthfulness and stability of this proposition. Every facility offered for investigation.

Write today for a circular of full particulars, price and terms of the profit-sharing certificates, and a book showing the progress being made, or better, call and talk it over. Office open evenings by appointment.

Members of the Chamber of Deputies threw books at one another, and in several instances fought with their fists. It looked for a time as though soldiers would have to be called in. When Count Thaa, president of the Chamber, arose to read the Imperial decree opening Parliament the tumult broke out.

Mayor Lunn Tells Why Helen Keller Was Given Office

SCHENECTADY, Sept. 17.—With the beginning of November, Miss Helen Keller, blind and deaf, will be at the head of the Welfare Board in this city, with an office adjoining that of the Socialist Mayor, George R. Lunn.

"I have selected Miss Keller because of several vital reasons," said Mayor Lunn today. "Because her mental viewpoint is different from that of ordinary mortals who can both see and hear, Miss Keller is particularly valuable in welfare work. Welfare work is heart work. We are not trying to make the poor people look better; we want them to feel better and to be in really better circumstances.

The welfare work already started consists of selling ice to the poor at cost, and the city has already begun to take orders for the Winter supply of coal at cost prices.

A municipal grocery is already in operation.

MORE ARCHBOLD LETTERS COMING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—William Randolph Hearst is expected to produce another set of letters revealing the correspondence between John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil Company and members of Congress when the Congressional inquiry into national campaign contributions is resumed on September 20.

John D. Archbold, George W. Perkins and Colonel Roosevelt are to be asked by the Senate committee to produce any correspondence they may have pertaining to "financial transactions" between the first two men and members of Congress, or between them and Mr. Roosevelt when he was President.

Investigation of this phase of the campaign contribution question was authorized by the La Follette-Cummins resolution just before Congress adjourned. Chairman Clapp of the investigation committee, after a conference with Senator Pomerene of Ohio, stated that the committee would open this line of inquiry by asking for the production of letters when the three witnesses named are on the stand.

The members of the House and Senate who may be called upon to submit their private letter files to the committee will not be named until after the investigation begins.

THE SALE OF SMALL WARES

Perhaps the most singular reductions we make during the year are the ones made on Small Wares in March and September.

Our preparations in these goods this year are beyond anything we have done heretofore. They were gathered with greatest care under the personal attention of competent judges of qualities.

The things offered are not of slipshod make. They are standard. We bought large quantities; we bought low. We'll sell large quantities; we'll sell low. You can well afford to buy all the Notions you're likely to need until next March.

If Pins, Needles, Thread, Hooks and Eyes, Bindings, Tapes, Dress Shields and related articles could speak, they would wonder why we are pricing them for so little. Hunt out something you know about, whether you want it or not, and judge us by that.

WHY IS IT?

Why should we? Why can we sell such staple goods at reduced prices?

We have a personal motive in this sale. We make it because we choose, because we think it wise.

The outlet we have made has led some manufacturers who were overstocked to offer us their products on such terms that we could not well refuse them.

When you get among the Small Wares your greatest task will be to get away again. They are so easy to see; there's so much to see. You can look with comfort, even if crowded; there's room for much crowding before the great piles are hidden. Yesterday a customer said to another:

"I know of no other place where you can get such value for your money."

Really, no word of ours is required to show you the economy of this movement.

When you can get worthy Notions for two-thirds, or half, or even less, it's a good time to buy. It's a good time to buy no odds what the season is—if you're likely soon to need the goods. That's what wise merchants do. When opportunity offers they buy in anticipation of needs. What's good for a big dealer in a big way is good for any of you, even if but in a very small way.

RED SOX RILEY'S COLUMN PILGRIMS

BY defeating Cleveland while the Red Sox rest in the grandstand at Somers park yesterday, the Athletics stalled off final defeat in the pennant race for one more day. If the Red Sox win today or the Athletics lose, it's all over. The Sox play Cleveland and Ray Collins may have the honor of putting the flag away on ice. The Athletics meet the White Sox.

* * *

GRANDSTAND seats at $3 per copy will be the standard price at Fenway park in the World Series, if the Red Sox management's plan is adopted. In that case box seats will sell at $5 each, and seats in the other stands may be at $2 and perhaps at $1. Those are the proposed list prices. How many seats will be available cannot be told now in this column. Early in the season it was said at Fenway park that the present stands would seat 25,000. After the Wood-Johnson game, which was high-water mark, attendance figures were given out, unofficially, which would indicate a seating capacity of 21,000 in the stands. Which figure is correct the writer does not know. Both of them came from Red Sox sources.

* * *

WHEN the pennant first waved in sight, Sox authorities estimated that stands could be built sufficiently large to hold 35,000 persons, in which case the park might accommodate 40,000. Later estimates may be revised, now that the pennant is in hand. With a new stand along the left field line and another between the permanent twenty-five-cent and fifty-cent stands, together with seats along "Duffy's Cliff," it should be a simple matter to find seating accommodations for between 30,000 and 35,000.

* * *

FOR the first time, therefore, the crowds in the American League city may be as large as those in the home of the National League winner. That they will be —if the "fans" can get in—goes without saying. Boston will show itself as good a baseball city as New York, and a better one than any other city in the country. The players should divide much more money this year than ever before.

* * *

BUT the ticket speculators are right on the job, hungry as a pack of wolves. Certain speculators who have great quantities of choice theatre seats when good drawing attractions are playing Boston and the houses are announced as "sold out," have indicated that they hope to sell blocks of World Series tickets, notwithstanding the normal advance demand at Fenway park itself will be more than enough to take all the seats at whatever prices are fixed.

* * *

WHEN the demand of the league season reached high water mark—the day Joe Wood won his pitching battle from Walter Johnson—the prevailing rate of the speculators was $3 for a 75-cent seat, and this price was uniform among the speculators, so the street hawkers evidently obtained their pasteboards from sources which fixed the prices. The following day—Saturday—the speculators had united on reaping a harvest, since it had been anticipated that the crowd would be the largest of the season. But the great game of the day before left them with tickets on hand, and, although the crowd overflowed onto the field on that Saturday, speculators, for the first time this season, piled their busines outside the gates, having been unable to sell out downtown.

* * *

IT has been given out from Red Sox sources that some of these speculators have already offered to bribe some of those in charge of the World Series sale. If the authorities who are in charge of the sales expect to avoid a repetition of last year's troubles they will find a fish on hand.

BY pitching a bunch of "rookies" into the game, including three pitchers, Woodburn, Perritt and Burke, Roger Bresnahan lost yesterday's encounter with the Pilgrims, 3 to 4. "Lefty" Tyler started off for Kling's men, but retired when his wobbling became serious, and Walter Dickson replaced him. The Pilgrims slammed out seven hits and scored seven runs in the second inning, putting Woodburn to flight and gaining such a lead that Bresnahan never had any hope of catching them. Thus Boston had the edge of the series, 2 to 1, before today's game.

* * *

AMONG the six players gathered out of the draft by President Gaffney of the Pilgrims is Paul Strand, the twenty-year-old whom John I. Taylor bought from Seattle last Spring when Strand was "setting the coast on fire" and was hailed as a coming champion. Strand hoped to break into the majors then, but Taylor had enough twirling material and never sent for him. It was an odd turn of fate that now throws him into the South End instead of the Fenway grounds.

* * *

O'ROURKE, the Connecticut League recruit, played third base in place of McDonald, who went hastily when he was sold to Sacramento. The youngsters played well enough to fill the bill until Arthur Bues, the ex-Giant "rookie" who made good at Buffalo this Summer, joins the team next week. George T. Stallings, manager of the Bisons, who has been talked of as a coming Pilgrim manager since last Winter, has told his friend, President Gaffney, that Bues is a wonder and that McGraw may be sorry he lost him.

Clymer to War on President Farrell

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 17.—Just as Manager William J. Clymer was ready to start for Binghamton to lay his claims for the New York State League pennant before the board of directors he received a telegram informing him that some of the magnates who agreed to the call for a special meeting would be unable to attend the session. Clymer has started a boom, and he says he has other magnates with him, to dethrone President Farrell and make Howard Earl president of the New York State League.

Gridiron News of Big Colleges

OLD TIGER STARS BACK.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 17.—There was general rejoicing here today when it was learned that "Butch" Dunlap and "Tubby" Waller, two of the Tigers gridiron stars last season, will be eligible to play this year, having worked off the university conditions. They resume to get on the field for practice either this afternoon or tomorrow.

HARD WORK FOR YALE SQUAD.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 17.—A hard session of signal drill was ordered for the Yale football squad this afternoon. While there is general interest in the manner in which the men shape up the most eagerness is directed toward the selection of a quarterback for the first team. Cornish will probably get the place.

SEVENTY IN MIDDIES SQUAD.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 17.—Football practice at the Naval Academy opened with a squad of seventy members on Worden Field at the call of Lieutenant Douglas L. Howard, the head coach. Professor C. V. Counsilman, who will later take charge of the fourth class team, assisted Lieutenant Howard with the coaching. Frank Wheaton, the field coach, is expected during the week.

CORNELL IN SCRIMMAGE.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Thirty minutes of sharp scrimmage, in which the Cornell varsity played against two scrub teams alternately, featured the football practice at Percy Field opening. Three times the varsity defended on the five-yard line, and three times they were given the ball on the same line. Coach Sharpe's idea of building up a team regardless of the positions played by the men in former years was shown clearly in the way the varsity was picked.

PENN OUTLOOK POOR.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—The second day's practice of the University of Pennsylvania football candidates at Franklin Field brought some encouragement to Coach "Andy" Smith and Captain Roy Mercer, as forty candidates appeared on the field. The line material is the poorest seen in a good many years.

REAL WORK FOR INDIANS.

CARLISLE, Pa., Sept. 17.—The initial lineup and scrimmage of the Carlisle Indian football season took place today. Four practice elevens worked for a solid hour on signals under the direction of squad leaders before the scrimmage. Good speed was shown throughout the preliminary drills, and the culminating lineup showed the redskins in fairly good shape for the advanced dates.

TWENTY REPORT AT BROWN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 17.—More than twenty candidates reported at Andrews Field to answer the first call for football material for the Brown University squad. The strength of the Brown team next season will, in the opinion of the coaches depend largely on the new material developed. Many of last year's players have been graduated.

N. H. STATE MEN OUT.

DURHAM, N. H., Sept. 17.—The football season began at the New Hampshire State College when Charles Eberle, Swarthmore '10, assumed his duties for the first time as coach of the Elevens. Eberle was assistant coach at Swarthmore last year. Thirty-five men reported for practice.

SMALL SQUAD AT COLBY.

WATERVILLE, Me., Sept. 17.—Eleven men appeared on the Colby Athletic Field to meet Colby's new football coach, Eddie Daley of Dartmouth. Fraser, Merrill, Pratt, Royal, Goldthwaite, Soule, Keppel, Beach and Bowler, all veterans, and Grant and Taft.

Old Football Star to Try "Come Back"

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 17.—Harvey Sconce, considered by Coach Huff the greatest halfback that ever played at the University of Illinois, intends to enter the Agricultural College this Fall, and it is said that he will try to make the Illini ball team. He is said to be eligible if he desires to become a candidate for the eleven.

Since leaving college more than twelve years ago, he has attended his farm, near Sidell, Ill., and came into fame by producing cobless corn. Sconce is now thirty-five years old, weighs 200 pounds, and has a family.

Students at the university are enthusiastic over his decision to re-enter the university, and they are hoping he can "come back" as a football star.

HARVARD SQUAD HAS FAST WORK

This morning the Harvard football squad turned out at Soldiers Field for their second practice of the season, and the evidences of the fast work through which they were put yesterday were plain. Lameness and stiffness had spread like an epidemic through the squad during the night, but it took little time to work this off.

As in the first practice, the medicine ball was passed around as an opener. The candidates they divided into small squads, led and coached by either Coach Haughton's assistants or varsity men, and practiced the forward pass with the ends going down for the ball.

"Pooch" Donovan, the trainer, likes the looks of the squad and finds them in better than fair condition. He assisted in the coaching in giving the men a start and fining them on. The "dummies" were horribly abused for the second time, the candidates all getting opportunities to practice tackling on the four football effigies which dangle from their transits and are daily handled roughly.

Chief attention was drawn by the coaches to getting the man low and with both arms, locking the dummy in an immovable grip. Paul Withington and Harry Gardner helped with this work.

Veterans Report.

Charles Brickley has already begun to show up strong along with Mal Logan, respective aspirants for backfield and quarterback positions. There are numerous "H" men out this year yet to come out, but the following have responded to the call and are in fine shape: H. B. Gardner, D. C. Parmenter, H. R. Hitchcock, E. Bradley, E. A. Graustein, R. T. P. Storer, P. M. Hollister, Vinton Freedley, Sam Felton and Rettie.

Assisting Coach Haughton are Pooch Donovan, trainer, and Lee Leary, and Captain Wendell. Others are expected before the season gets much further along. The managers, too, are on the job under W. E. M. Whitelock. George Plimpton is his assistant and these are a number more out for the second assistant's place.

Practices Twice Each Day.

There will be practice twice a day throughout this week. The freshman squad comes out today at 3:30 P. M. Tudor Gardiner, the tackle who played such fine football until he was hurt in the Princeton game last Fall, will coach the freshmen.

Yesterday's workout found fifty-four men on the gridiron for the varsity and the majority of new material worked out under "Pooch" Donovan and Coach Haughton and, as a finishing touch, were sent on the run around the stadium. The practice lasted a little over an hour and the practice will be expanded twice a day now, until an eleven is getting into shape for the Maine game a week from Saturday.

Those who reported for the team and first practice were: H. R. Amory, Atkinson, Beebe, Bettle, Bradley, Brickley, Bright, Cleary, Cooper, Coolidge, Cottrell, G. Curtis, N. Curtis, Driscoll, Felton, Freedley, Frothingham, Gibson, H. B. Gardner, E. A. Graustein, H. Hardwick, T. Hardwick, Harrower, Hitchcock, Hopkins, Logan, Makepiece, Merriam, Milholland, Noble, J. S. Parker, Parmenter, Pennell, Pierce, Poole, Priest, Robinson, Sigourney, H. St. J. Smith, Spang, Stanton, Steele, Storer, Temple, Trumbull, Underwood, Weatherhead, Wendell, Weston, Wigglesworth, Willetts and Paul Withington.

School Squads on the Gridiron

BIG SQUAD AT ENGLISH.

Candidates for the Boston High School football teams were called out for the first time yesterday. At Boston English High eighty candidates thronged to their names. At present it will be impossible to provide uniforms for all. The squad will report at the Locust street grounds today for practice. Twenty-five candidates for the backfield, sixteen ends, eight guards, twelve tackles and ten centres passed in their names for the English High School squad. The boys, as a rule, are smaller than in past years.

CANTABS START TODAY.

Cambridge Latin candidates will commence work on Cambridge Common today. Forty-five have signified their intention of reporting. Joe Dee may not play this year, because of an injured shoulder sustained in the Rindge game last Fall.

MECHANICS START WORK.

At Mechanic Art High eighty signified their intention of trying for the team. The boys are to report this afternoon at the North Brighton Playground. There are six veterans from the 1911 team.

SIX VETERANS AT LATIN.

Boston Latin candidates reported to the number of twenty-five. The veterans are Joe Green, Jack O'Dowd, Ernest O'Callahan, Jack Martin, John Saladine and Terry Doison.

FIFTY-TWO OUT AT DORCHESTER.

Dorchester High should have a stronger team than Last Fall. John D. O'Reilly will have charge of the candidates. Fifty-two appeared in togs yesterday and made a favorablel impression. Harold Mullane is the captain, and four veterans are available.

BRADY BACK AT NEWTON.

Coach Dickinson of Newton High was pleased when John Brady, the big tackle, reported at Claflin Field yesterday. Dick Sequenzo, the other guard, says he will don his togs today. The boys who have had experience are, Captain Wilbur, end; Van Bostick, halfback; Hyatt, quarterback; Ellison, halfback; Wellman, tackle; Tafe centre, and Nathan, back.

LONG DRILL AT EVERETT.

Everett High candidates were given a long drill on the field by Captain Brickley and showed up well. Boys likely to make regular positions are Morrison, McDonalds, Harry Harwood, Pierotti, Stanley Cooper, Fred Sweetland and Jack Cannell.

SAYLOR READY FOR BRITTON

By JACK CONWAY.

MILBURN SAYLOR, a rather short, well-built young man, who resides within the limits of the city of Indianapolis, will make an effort to win some new ring laurels by lowering the colors of Billy Breslin, alias Jack Britton, whom he meets in a twelve-round bout at the Pilgrim A. A. tonight.

Saylor is a quiet, unassuming youth. He has clear cut features, and if you should meet him in street costume you might take him for a rah-rah boy or an assistant manager of a ribbon counter at a five and ten cent store.

But regardless of these great handicaps Milburn is an eighteen karat boxer, or at least he was when we last saw him in action. He was greatly grieved upon being informed that Mr. Britton intended to give him a boxing lesson tonight and declared in Grecian eloquence that he would introduce Morgan's battler to the soft canvas which covers the ring at the Arena.

* * *

FAR be it from us to contradict a statement like this. So let it pass unnoticed. The contest has aroused a whole lot of interest among followers of the squared circle and it is expected that a big crowd of "fans" will turn out in order to take in the festivities.

This say or person last visited this fair village last Fall when he was pitted against Oscar Mathew Rattling Nelson, a tamed resident of Hegewisch and at one time king of the lightweights.

* * *

PREVIOUS to mingling with Saylor, the Battler had administered a sound beating to our old friend Billy Nixon of Camden, and he had an idea that he was on the road to another bout with Ad Wolgast. Saylor, however, thought differently and it would be cruel to relate what he did to the one champion.

Milburn—kind of like the sound of that name—was signed to meet Matty Baldwin at the Pilgrim A. A. last Summer, but was forced to call off the match at the last moment on account of illness.

After Britton made such a sensational showing against Eddie Murphy of South Boston, whom he knocked out in the eleventh round, Matchmaker McLean offered Jack another bout at his club and he immediately signed up.

McLean then started out to get an opponent for Britton, but experienced very little success. He finally got in touch with Saylor and he gladly consented to meet Britton.

* * *

BRITTON is one of the cleverest boxers that has been seen in this city for many months. He possesses a wonderful left jab. This was the punch that wore Murphy down until he was an easy victim by the knockout route.

The new hopper will not be able to hit Saylor as easily as he did Murphy. The Indianapolis pride keeps "covered up" when he is fighting at long range. He does not "open up" until he is to close, when he plays for the stomach and kidneys.

On paper it looks like a great fight, Britton is the favorite, but many of the wise ones are sticking along with Saylor. From where I sit it looks like a draw fight.

* * *

THE remainder of the card is well balanced. Charles Silverio of Beverly and Joe Geary of Roxbury will meet in an eight-round semi-final. Silverio is the former national amateur heavyweight champion. He did well in his last professional fight, sending Henry Hall to the mat for the fatal count in a few rounds. Geary is a sturdy battler and is sure to cause Silverio a lot of trouble.

Tommy Foley of South Boston will meet Tony Meringo of the North End in what promises to be a spirited contest. Foley has not appeared in a ring for almost a year, but is now in good condition. He has been training at Highland Lake. Meringo is a slam bang artist and the mixing should be of the best.

There will be another six round go between Gus Lucey of South Boston and Eddie Keyes of Lynn.

* * *

EDDIE MURPHY of South Boston denies the report that he intends to quit the ring. The local star is now training hard at his home in the Peninsular district and will be one of the principals in an all-star card at the Pilgrim A. A. within two weeks. Eddie will be pitted against a well known local lightweight.

Record Goes in N. E. Championship Swim

The New England championship swimming races in the Charles River basin became virtually a dual meet between the Brookline S. C. and the Brookline Gym. A. A., as members of both these organizations won first in all the events.

The only records broken was the 100 yards, when L. G. Rich of the Brookline S. C. clipped three seconds off his old mark, lowering the time from 1m. 0s. to 1m. 0s.

Eleven distance men took the water for the three-mile swim, with Sam Richards, Jr., and George Meehan the favorites. At the finish Meehan led Richards by about half a mile. Meehan's time for the three miles was 1 hour 28 minutes and 33 seconds. Richards finished in 1 hour 36 minutes and 20 seconds, and Murphy, the winner of third place, finished a quarter-mile to the rear of Richards, his time being 1 hour 42 minutes and 25 seconds. Sullivan of Lowell came fourth in 1 hour 47 minutes.

Local Golfers Win In Maplewood Play

MAPLEWOOD, N. H., Sept. 17.—Low handicap men won out in this morning's first round of match play in the Autumn golf handicap at Maplewood.

C. F. Cleveland, New York, and V. D. Burgesser, East Orange, both scoring eleven strokes to their opponents and winning by narrow margins, F. H. Bailey, Braeburn, after being 1 down to M. C. Kig slim, dead for the first nine, came home in 38, winning on the seventeenth green with a drive one foot from the hole. H. A. Jackson, Chestnut Hill, yesterday's medalist, won handily from Manager Leon Hilley of the Maplewood Hotel, finishing with a card of 81.

FIRST ROUND

C. S. Maclean, Los Angeles, beat W. H. Macdermott, New York, 6-4.
C. H. Harriman, New York, beat T. J. Moore, Washington, 8-6.
C. F. Cleveland, New York, beat O. D. Sawyer, Magnolia Springs, 2-1.
H. A. Jackson, Chestnut Hill, beat L. M. Chirry, Maplewood, 3-7.
W. W. Cocoa, Brooklyn, beat J. R. Hilton, New York, 6-5.
F. H. Bailey, Braeburn, beat M. C. Kairns (bye), 2-1.
V. D. Burgesser, East Orange, beat S. B. Macdermott, New York, one up.
W. D. Eaton, Winchester, beat W. A. Faxon, Buffalo, 3-2.

Kelly Is After Diamond Sculls

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—Jack Kelly, captain of the Vesper Boat Club, is training for the diamond sculls in England. Although the event is two years off, Kelly rows on the Schuylkill every afternoon to perfect his oarsmanship. He enters the University of Pennsylvania this year, and Coach Ellis Ward will give him special attention. Ten Eyck and Howell are the only Americans who ever won the diamond sculls.

Diamond Gossip

Dave Fultz says there are men in the major leagues playing for $900 a year and that the new players' union is going to help them. Of course, $900 is too little. But then there are players getting $8,000. How can you equalize it?

* * *

If young Jimmy Lavender had been able to continue as he started in July, there might have been a firmer finish to the Club dash. And they hung too heavy a wreath of laurel on Jimmy's brow at the start. He was carrying weight for age in the stretch, and the extra poundage set him out of the game.

* * *

Cincinnati can already hear the 1913 pennant flapping. They know they're going to have a good team down there next year just because they whipped the Giants twice in a row.

* * *

The White Sox might have done well to keep Ralph Crabb. He put one over for the Athletics, and might have done as well for the Sox.

* * *

Chief Meyers is all cuckered out from the strain of it all. He left the Giants at Pittsburg and went home to rest a while.

* * *

When Matty McIntyre was informed that he must go to San Francisco from Chicago to finish out the season, and when he realized that after the season ended he had to return to Staten Island again, he said he was glad there was no league in Siberia.

HOW RED SOX BEAT GIANTS IN 1909 SERIES

THE Red Sox and Giants, who will oppose each other in the series for the world's championship this Fall, played a post-series at the end of the 1909 baseball season and the Giants, four games in five. New York won the first game, but thereafter Boston took four straight.

These teams were partly composed of the men who will play this year. Some idea of how the two teams played then will be valuable in comparing them now. Beginning tomorrow the AMERICAN will publish a series of stories analyzing the Giants-Red Sox post-season games of 1909.

FIRST GAME.

	R.	H.	E.
Red Sox	2	8	2
Giants	4	11	2

Batteries—Wood and Carrigan; Mathewson and Meyers.

THIRD GAME.

Giants	4	7	0
Red Sox	3	11	2

Batteries—Ames, Crandall and Schiel; Hall and Carrigan.

The first two games were played at New York, the second two at Boston and the final in New York. For the benefit of AMERICAN readers, the scores of the series are published herewith.

Oddly enough, Joe Wood now relied upon to beat the Giants, lost the only game dropped by Boston in the series. Wood was only nineteen years old then. Mathewson beat him. Wood, Hall, Collins, Pape and Carrigan, who appeared in that series, are still doing batters work for Boston, while Mathewson, Wiltse, Marquard, Crandall and Ames are still doing similar duty for the Giants.

HARMONY THE KEYNOTE OF BOSTON TEAM'S SUCCESS

STAHL TELLS HOW RED SOX WON FLAG

By JAKE STAHL.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17. Steady and consistent playing and with every member of the team trying his very best since the opening day, is what won the pennant for the Red Sox. I do not want any of the credit as manager of the club. What praise there is to be given goes to the players. I was one of them, but I want to say as long as I have been in baseball, I have never been associated with a more conscientious family than mine.

To develop a pennant winning ball club you must first start out with the boys and have them all pull together. Without harmony the greatest bunch of stars on the diamond will not succeed. That was my first schooling last Spring.

When we were training I called them all together almost every night. I drilled into them that the Red Sox was a team, everybody one, and for the team to succeed, each had to help the other. My request was answered the very first day and the result is shown in our great victory.

I take great pride in myself, the fact that I am manager of such a team, and I only hope that we will be supreme for many more years.

Praise for Fans.

While talking about the players, I want to mention a little word about the fans of our home town. I know they did not think we were going to win this championship when we started the season, but I congratulate them the way they stuck to us. We wanted to win for them just as much as they wanted us to win.

Now that the pennant belongs to us I don't think any one will doubt but that the Red Sox are the best team in the American league. And I hope that we will be the champions of the world.

In winning this prize I want to offer congratulations to Connie Mack, Clark Griffith and the rest of the other managers. They fought it out with us to the very last, but the Athletics did not stick together as we did. Griffith got a lot of trouble and really I feared both of these contenders until the end. I never uttered a word to anybody about claiming this pennant.

The championships are not won in the hotel lobbies and in conversations. I have been asked thousands and thousands of times during the Summer if I thought we would win. Deep down in my heart I had that alluring confidence of victory. But my thoughts never got out of my mind.

I always said I hoped for the best, and here it is.

We won by going out on the ball field every day, knowing that the other fellow would have to play better than we did to win. They didn't do that often and with my boys playing their best all the time for me, our success eventually came to us.

I won't pick out one player who has aided us the most in winning, because we haven't anybody like that on our team. Yes, Joe Wood has been a tower of strength to us in winning his last 16 games, as well as 22 for the season. But if somebody asks Wood about his triumphs he will tell them that the boys win his games for him. That's the spirit that is all around the club.

We all think the world of Joey, but the same goes for Hall, Hedlett, O'Brien, Collins, Pape, Yerkes, Gardner, Wagner, Engle, Hall, Lewis, Speaker, Hooper, Henriksen, Cady, Thomas, Carrigan, Nunamaker and the entire flock.

When you get a team that boasts of a few individual stars, you'll have a hard time winning a pennant. Team work and not individuality is another point that won for us. Nobody was out for record batting averages. They were playing every day to win the game and to win the pennant. I think we have succeeded.

The willingness, too, of the boys, has played an important factor in our victory. The outside world never knew of any of our injuries for the reason that we kept them to ourselves.

Several times some of the boys would get spiked, turn an ankle, or be laid up with a cold or some ailment, and when I wanted to give them a rest they refused. Their only thought was to win the American League pennant. When we lost they took the defeat gracefully with never a word detrimental against the other club.

I doubt if the baseball records can show where any major league club went through such a steady pace as this one. We have not had a single slump, playing practically the same style every day. Go through the scores since the first and you will find that our worst losing streak was three successive defeats. I thought it was but two games, but on June 3 and 4 these land beat us here and the next day we lost to Detroit.

Not Worrying About 1913.

I am not worrying about next year for we are confident that we can repeat in 1913. I have a few youngsters with me now and I have my strings attached to a few others who will be looked in when I need them. We are ready to join the But from head to foot the team is a young one. I guess I'm about the old man in the troupe. So why should I worry about next season?

Take me outfield. It should be just as good many years from now as it is at present. The same for the infield. The catching staff is good enough for me, and I'll place my pitchers against any for speed and curves.

They say that Mack's pitchers failed on us in the old times dropped back. Look at Wood. Joe is just 22. O'Brien, Bedient, Collins, Hall, Pape and all the others I don't think really have reached the zenith of their baseball careers. Instead of the Boston club going back I think we are just showing our class and that we will improve for many more years.

Anyway, the pennant is ours. I am the happiest fellow in the game, and all that remains to crown this feat is to beat the National League pennant winners. If we lose out that will be because the best team beat us. But I don't think this will happen.

Lively Tilts Mark N. E. A. A. U. Meeting

Several lively fits between the delegates marked the annual meeting of the N. E. A. A. U. last night, when William C. Prout, captain of the B. A. A. track team, said he had personal charges against some of the officials of the association and brought them to light. Prout claimed that the association had transacted business during the past year in a manner not in accordance with the constitution.

When the treasurer's report was read, Prout objected to a portion, claiming that money had been expended contrary to the constitution. He questioned the right of the treasurer to donate money to the Olympic fund, without consulting the board of Governors. It caused quite a tussle. The report was finally adopted.

Another clash came on the report of the nominating committee. Prout claimed the committee was not legally appointed. High Meredith, chairman of the committee, took office at Prout's request, and for seven minutes they exchanged some hot words. The report was accepted.

Pilgrim Recruits, and Who They Are

That the Pilgrims will be strengthened next year with new blood is known to the drafting of six minor leaguers by the Joint Gaffney.

Of these, Bill McKechnie has been in the big league circles before. McKechnie was with Pittsburgh, having been drafted from Wheeling W. Va., in 1909. He remains a third baseman, although he has played at shortstop at St. Paul.

Mel of San Antonio is the next most well known. He was the real cause of the Texas League last year. Mels clouted the ball for twenty-two home runs.

Fred Strand is the Indian pitcher who was given a trial by the Red Sox a few years ago. Strand was only a youngster at the time, but Schwind is a southpaw. He is the possessor of the record in the Texas League, having won 29 games.

Schultz of Akron is a pitcher of whom there is no tip on. Cooper is also said to be an outfielder and very fast at the plate.

$30,000 FOR PIERCE.

Charles Murphy states that he has refused $30,000 for his new pitcher, Pierce, of Scranton. He doesn't say who offered him, but doubtless it was his Philadelphia financing, that

Hunting a Husband

No. 36—The Widow Has a Chance Encounter with Maynard

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

TO her intense irritation, Beatrice felt herself start violently, and the crimson flush that she hated swept over her face. The man lifted his hat gravely, then, bending, spoke close to her ear that he might make himself heard above the roar of the train.

"I did not know you were still in town," he said, "and it was not till you had passed into the car that I saw your face, and recognized in you the lady who came near being badly hurt. I am thankful that you were not injured."

Beatrice was so weary that speech was an effort, and she answered as briefly as courtesy would permit.

"I was very stupid," she said, "to make such a misstep, and I thank you for helping to extricate me from an awkward dilemma."

If he thought that she was going to regard him as a hero who had rescued her from danger, he was doomed to disappointment. She would not encourage him to tell his fiance how noble he had been to a lonely widow, who, but for his interposition, might have been seriously hurt. She would treat the entire affair—himself included—as a commonplace and insignificant incident. But he was not to be put off thus easily, for in a few moments he beat over her again.

"Would you not like me to call a taxicab for you when you reach your station?" he asked. "It will give me pleasure to see that you get home safely."

Trying Her Dignity

"Thank you," she replied stiffly, "that will not be necessary."

It is difficult to be dignified in speech on a train, for one must raise one's voice to an ear-distressing pitch to make one's speech audible. Beatrice, conscious of this fact, congratulated herself that Robert Maynard would probably get out at the next station. But she was mistaken, for he remained standing in the aisle until her street was called out, when he turned and offered to help her to her feet. She proceeded not to see his outstretched hand, but stood up alone and hurried from the car, followed by Maynard.

But she was weaker in nerve and body from the shock of her fall than she appreciated, and as she left the car the step seemed to waver under her tread, and she grasped the rail to steady herself. The man beside her saw the halt in her gait, and, taking her by the elbow, supported her to the ground. The widow remembered with dismay that the home was several long blocks away, and hoped for strength to walk the distance alone. If she could only get rid of her self-instituted escort! Turning to him she held out her hand.

"Again I thank you, and good afternoon," she said, with a forced smile. "And now I will ask you to leave me, as I am getting right home and need no more help."

He took her hand and stood looking at her quizzically, yet a trifle sadly.

A Lame Excuse

"Dear lady," he urged, "do not act as if I were an enemy instead of a friend. I do not want to annoy you, but you are not well, and I do not intend to leave you until I see you safe in your house. That is the least that any man would do under the circumstances."

"I am accustomed to going about alone," declared Beatrice, "even"—with a flush of anger—"at the hours when you say a woman should be at home."

"I did not know that the woman in question was you when I made that remark," said Maynard gently.

"The facts were the same, no matter who the woman was!" retorted Beatrice. But before she could say more the man beckoned up a carriage that was passing, put her in it, and, giving her address to the driver, stepped in after her. Then he continued their conversation as if it had not been interrupted.

"I think," he pleaded, "that you ought to pardon that speech you overheard me make to the guard, since, had I known who the woman I helped was, I would have felt and spoken differently."

"And I do not see what difference that would have made," insisted Beatrice, "as your statement might apply to any woman."

"Not if she were YOU," said Maynard softly, "for you always make all the difference to me."

Beatrice looked at him suddenly, surprised at his tone, but he was gazing straight ahead of him, and she held her peace. She would not be the one to ask for an explanation, or to say a word that would give him a chance to account for his behavior since their last meeting. Her life, she reminded herself, was complicated enough just now without her running the risk of muddling it still further by a dispute with the man beside her. He had, she had believed, passed out of her existence, and, while she may have regretted the circumstances that led to this passing, she had never allowed herself to regret the man. So she leaned back in the corner of the cab and, as in the car, closed her weary eyes. She would be glad to get home and to bed. She hoped that Mary had begun to pack the trunks, for if so, she could finish them tomorrow with little trouble. She did not want to look at them tonight. She opened her eyes with a sigh as the cab drew up to her curb.

"I thank you, Mr. Maynard," she said, once more, politely, "for your kindness. I must be very tired, or I would not have allowed you to put yourself to so much inconvenience. I hope you have not been thinking me very inconsiderate."

"I have been thinking," he murmured as he helped her from the cab, "of other rides we have had together."

A Boy's Greeting

He paid the driver and followed her into the house. Jack, who had been talking to the elevator boy, ran forward to greet them.

"Oh, Mr. Maynard!" he exclaimed, joyously. "I'm so glad to see you! You're coming up to dinner, aren't you?"

Maynard laughed easily. "No, dear lad," he replied, "but I am coming as far as your apartment to see that your mother is all right. She's not very well."

"Aren't you, mother?" questioned the child, anxiously. "Is that why Mr. Maynard brought you home in a cab?"

"I only tired," replied the widow hastily. "I've been shopping and Mr. Maynard met me on the car and insisted on calling a cab for me."

She would forestall any explanation of Maynard's. But she need not have troubled herself, for the man and boy were soon seated in her living room chatting merrily of other matters, while she, listening, said little. When Maynard rose to go the boy caught his hand and squeezed it impulsively.

"Oh, I do like you!" he said. "Do come often to see us!"

"If mother will let me" replied the man, glancing over the boy's head at the widow.

"Certainly," she said, colorlessly. Yet, as he asked the question she had a sudden thrill of feeling. Was it pleasure at his evident desire to see her again, or was it triumph?

After he had gone she remembered distinctly three things: First, that he had wished to come again; second, that he had not asked nor had she told him where she was going for the summer, and, third, that nothing had been said by either Maynard or herself of his engagement nor of his betrothed.

The Ten Ages of Beauty

No. 7—The Girl of Mystery

Illustration from Good Housekeeping Magazine for September.

This Picture by Nell Brinkley Is Reproduced by Permission and Accompanies an Article by Octava Uzanne on "The Story of Furs and Muffs."

IS she your favorite type of feminine beauty?

Anything that is mysterious attracts attention.

When all other lines of advertising fail, the would-be theatrical star shrouds herself in some sort of a mystery, or is carefully enveloped in one by the fantasy of her press-agent.

The mystery may be a weird tale of tragedy and crime, or the more obvious one of being photographed with a mask on, and only appearing on the street heavily veiled.

These eccentricities are everywhere to wonder-ed, and that is what the mysterious person is after. You don't have to admire her, you don't have to love her, but she must occupy your thoughts, and to that end she is carefully and systematically mysterious in her actions and her dress.

The famous prisoner in the iron mask has occupied the mind of millions of people, because of the mystery attached to him. And what every woman knows is that she can keep all men and most women guessing if she will only shroud herself in some kind of a mystery.

The girl in the picture wears a mask, and I know you are crazy to see what she does not wear. Is it beautiful? Is it ugly? Is it commonplace? Is it unique? Is it pretty? Is it plain? Is it—but why go on? Her mask looks like. As she trips on her way, every man she passes is filled with curiosity, with wonder and interest. If she were the greatest beauty in the world she would not attract as much attention as she does by hiding or veiling her charms.

The girl who can be mysterious, and lots of them are, has an extraordinary power over people, for she lingers in their thoughts and exercises their imagination.

Lots of girls cultivate this air of mystery, and you see in their faces the deep, wonderful, brooding expression that makes you believe they are thinking of unfathomable things.

Mystery is the refuge of the stupid.

If you try hard enough you can always look and act as if there were worlds of meanings behind your simplest glance.

Sometimes a girl is born to look mysterious; such a one was the fair Edna, one of the most beautiful girls I have ever seen. She had brown eyes as big as teacups, and while she hardly ever said anything, she looked unutterable things. You would feel those big, brown eyes gazing at you even when your back was turned, and as if drawn by some wonderful magic you would ask, "What is it?" trying to fathom the mystery behind that deep, searching glance of hers. But she always answered, "Nothing."

Edna married a very rich man. She is still marvellously beautiful and in her face is the mystery of the Sphinx. She never mars this expression, for she seldom says anything. Her husband adored her until he found out that behind this wall of mystery there was a perfectly vacant brain, a thing which we could have told him before his marriage.

They are divorced now, and she is about to marry No. 2, who has also succumbed to the charm of the silent, mysterious looking beauty.

Dunne turned over an infinitesimal specimen with his fork.

"I don't know," he said, "unless they use insect powder."

Wearing Mourning

Adapt the Custom to Your Own Necessities

By DOROTHY DIX

A LITTLE eighteen-year-old working girl writes me a pathetic letter in regard to the etiquette of mourning attire.

She says that her father died a month ago, and she is raped together every penny she could spare and bought a black frock for the funeral. Now the weather is beginning to grow cool, and she wants to know if she can wear her good last Winter's suit and jacket and hat if she will sew on a band of black around the arm of the coat. She says her friends tell her it would be highly improper, and that she must have an entire outfit of black clothes.

The poor little girl is greatly troubled because she doesn't want to do anything that would seem to be wanting in respect to her father's memory, nor does she want to lay herself open to the criticism of her friends, and yet she doesn't see where she's got the money to buy all this regalia of woe.

If this little girl will take my advice she won't put on one stitch of mourning, but go right along wearing her everyday clothes. Mourning is in the heart, not in the black garments that we hang upon our backs, and if the dear dead can look back upon us and take account of what we do, be sure that it can add no joy to their heaven to see us swathed in crepe that makes us sick, or burdened with debt for new black clothes that we cannot afford.

The Father's Wish

This girl had a loving, unselfish father, who tried his best to take care of her. Does she not know that he would far rather that she put the money that a mourning outfit would cost in good food to nourish her, and keep her well and strong, than for her to go half starved in order to pay for garments publicly to proclaim her loss?

And inasmuch as it can do the dead no good for us to clothe ourselves in sombre garments, and as it intensifies the sorrows of the living, why should we be bound by the opinion of fools in such matters? Why should we even listen to their chatter, or be affected by it?

The heart that mourns has no need of a black uniform to advertise its bereavement, and when the livery of grief is worn by those who rejoice, rather than sorrow, it becomes a sacrifice, a mockery of death itself. Yet we see women dressed in the deepest black whose faces belong in the comic opera chorus rather than the funeral procession, and who justify the theory that the grief is the safest that breaks out the most profusely in billows of crepe, and that many a loved one's weeping veil is hide her joy at being free again.

Fantasies of Grief.

It is one of the tragedies of death that we meet it neither with the faith of Christians nor the common sense of philosophy. Whether we believe that the beloved ones that have passed on have gone to Elysium or into Nirvana, we know that they are, at least, at peace and at rest, and better off than they were in this hard and cruel world. Theirs is the gain, ours the loss, but instead of trying to mitigate our natural sorrow we seem to think that there is merit in making it as hard as possible. We are like the Eastern fanatics that heap their wounds green by turning the knife in them.

We need cheer and whatever brightness possible brought into our lives then more than at any other time, and yet we pull down the blinds of our windows and shut out the sunshine; we silence music, and we turn ourselves in black that makes every casual glance at our dress stab us anew with our sorrow.

All physicians bear testimony to the unhealthfulness of wearing mourning. Every neurologist will tell you that for a delicate and nervous woman, in the throes of a great grief, to smother herself in crepe is to endanger not only her life but her reason, and that many a woman owes her being a mental and physical wreck to her mourning. Yet so great is the power of fashion and convention that only women of the greatest independence of character dare to defy the edict that dyes them in black for a prescribed number of months after a death in their families.

The heaviest burden of this senseless custom falls, however, on the poor. The rich can at least afford to throw away all of their old clothes and buy new black ones when they suffer a bereavement. The poor cannot.

Idiotic Convention.

To many a poor family a death means not only the grief of losing one they love, but being plunged into financial ruin by the necessity they feel to have a display funeral, and to purchase mourning wardrobes. Dresses and hats and warm coats, not new, but with months of good wear in them, must be cast aside, and new black ones purchased in order to comply with an idiotic convention.

To pay for these black clothes means that every legitimate expense must be cut down. There must be less food, less fire, less light; old people must be denied comforts, little children deprived of the things they need. A hard worked man or woman must work still harder. Young boys and girls must be taken from school and sent out to earn a few more cents a day to help the family pay off the debts for their mourning.

Is it not pitiful? Is it not grotesque? Is it not time that people began to use a little sense in the matter, and refuse to be bound by a heathenish superstition that compels them to wear a certain kind of garment, whether they can afford it or not, in order to proclaim to the passersby the most sacred secret of their hearts.

Away with the mourning garb? Each heart knoweth its own bitterness and its loss, and clothes have nothing to do with the measure of its grief.

Household Hints

Shabby leather bags may be improved in appearance by being rubbed over with well-beaten white of an egg, and then polished with beeswax and turpentine, the final rubbing being given with a soft, clean cloth.

Ink stains may be removed from linen by putting it for twenty-four hours in raw linseed oil and rinsing out in hot turpentine, repeating the process till clean, or wash in hot soda and water and soft soap.

Grass stains may be removed from washing materials by carefully rubbing the spots with a little fresh lard. Then wash in the usual way, and you will find that the stains have entirely disappeared.

When making a vegetable and meat stew, be sure to put a layer of vegetables before the meat as well as above it. This prevents the meat from boiling hard.

Nothing is more objectionable than a sponge that has become slimy. To remedy this, soak it in strong borax water, wringing it out, and renewing the water until clean.

Sprinkle the top of a cake with powdered sugar before icing it. This lessens the chances of the icing running off from the sides.

Wet a rag with kerosene and stuff it into the rathole, and the rat will come no more to that hole.

SHE SUFFERED TEN MONTHS

Mrs. Blankenship Tells of Her Restoration to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elliston, Va.—"I feel it my duty to express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a sufferer from female troubles and had been confined in bed over one third of my time for ten months. I could not do my housework and had fainting spells so that my husband could not leave me alone for five minutes at a time.

"Now I have been restored to health and it has come from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Whenever I see a suffering woman I want to tell her what this medicine has done for me and I will always speak a good word for it."—Mrs. ROBERT BLANKENSHIP, Elliston, Va., Montgomery Co.

Was Helpless—Now Well.

Trenton, Mo.—"About two years ago I had female trouble and inflammation so bad that I was literally helpless and had to be tended like a baby. I could not move my body or lift my foot for such severe pains that I had to scream. I was very nervous and had a weakness.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me to such an extent that I think there is no medicine like it for female troubles. I am up and able to do my work again and I give you full permission to publish my letter for the benefit of other suffering women."—Mrs. J. TURNBULL, 320-10th St., Trenton, Mo.

Well in Advance.

"I WOULD like to look at some household goods," said the tall brunette as she entered the big furniture shop. "You see, I expect to be married soon."

"Ah, indeed," said the polite clerk. "Just step this way. We have special inducements for young couples starting in housekeeping. When is the glad event to come off?"

"Well—er—the day hasn't been settled yet."

"Oh, I see; the lucky young man has just proposed, and"——

"No, he hasn't proposed yet, but"——

"Ah, he is going to propose. How long has he been calling?"

"Well, he hasn't started calling yet, but"——

"What is the young man's name?"

"Really, I don't know at present, but mamma says she thinks some nice young man will start calling soon, so I wanted to be in time."

Real or Imitation

SIR THOMAS LIPTON was talking about pure food laws to a New York reporter.

"And that reminds me," said Sir Thomas, "of my youth, when I was running my first shop and sleeping under the counter.

"A rival in the next street was selling notoriously bad goods, and I heard a story about him with delight.

"It seems that a customer entered his shop and asked for a pound of butter.

"'Yes, sir,' said my rival. 'The real or the imitation, sir?'

"'What was it you sold me yesterday?' inquired the customer.

"'That was the real, sir.'

"'Then give me the imitation.'"

BOWELS SLUGGISH, STOMACH SOUR, GASSY, UPSET? CASCARETS GREAT

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means your stomach is full of sour, undigested food, your liver is torpid—your bowels constipated. It isn't your stomach's fault—it isn't indigestion—it's biliousness and constipation.

Try Cascarets, they immediately awaken the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning.

10 Cents. Never gripe or sicken.

BUT, first, does he understand his own trouble? He does not seem to. For when, his hat thrown aside, he stops, erect and frowning, under the flaring gas-jet, he had no recollection of lighting, his first act was to lift his hand to his head in a gesture of surprising helplessness for him, while snatches of broken sentences fell from his lips, among which could be heard:

"What has come to me? Undone in an hour! Doubly undone! First by a face, and then by the devils who have whispered to me. Mr. Challoner and Oswald! What is the link between them? Great God! what is the link? Not myself? Who then or what?"

Flinging himself into a chair, he buried his face in his hands. There were two demons to fight—the first in the guise of an angel, Doris! Unknown yesterday, unknown an hour ago; but now! Had there ever been a day—an hour—when she had not been as the very throb of his heart, the light of his eyes, and the crown of all imaginable blisses?

He was startled at his own emotion as he contemplated her image in his fancy and listened for the lost echo of the few words she had spoken—words so full of music when they referred to his brother, so hard and cold when she simply addressed herself.

This was no passing sophistries of youth for a captivating woman. This was not even the love he had given to Edith Challoner. This was something springing full-born out of nothing—a force which, for the first time in his life, made him complaisant to the natural weaknesses of man—a dream and yet a reality strong enough to blot out the past, remake the present, change the aspect of all his hopes, and outline a new fate. He did not know himself. There was nothing in his whole history to give an understanding of such feelings as these.

Can a man be seized, as it were, by the hair and swung up on the slopes of Paradise or down the steeps of Hell without a forewarning, without the chance even to say whether he wished such a catastrophe in his life or not?

He, Orlando Brotherson, had never thought much of love. Science had been his mistress, ambition his lode-star. Such feeling as he had acknowledged had been for men—struggling men, men who were downtrodden and grasping in the narrow bounds of poverty and helplessness. Miss Challoner had roused—well, his pride, he could see that now. The might of this new emotion made plain many things he had passed as puerile, unworthy of a man of mental calibre and might. He had never loved Edith Challoner at any moment of their acquaintanceship, though he had been sincere in thinking that he did. Doris's beauty, the hour he had just passed with her, had undeceived him.

No Hope

Did he hail the experience? It was not likely to bring him joy. This young girl whose image floated in light before his eyes, would never love him. She loved his brother. He had heard their names mentioned together before he had been in town an hour. Oswald, the cleverest man, Doris the most beautiful girl in western Pennsylvania.

He had accepted the gossip then; he had not seen her, and it all seemed very natural—hardly worth a moments thought. But now!——

And here, the other demon sprang erect and grappled with him before the first one had let go his hold. Oswald and Challoner! The secret, unknown something which had softened that hard man's eye when his brother's name was mentioned! He had noted it and realised the mystery; a mystery before which sleep and rest must fly's a mystery to which he must now give his thought, whatever the cost, whatever the loss to those heavenly dreams the magic of which was so new it seemed to envelop him in the balm of Paradise. Away, them. Image of light! Let the faculties then last dazed act again. There is more than Fate's caprice in Challoner's interest in a man he never saw. Ghosts of old memories else and demand a hearing. Facts, trivial and commonplace enough to have been lost in oblivion with the day which gave them birth, throng again from the past, proving that naught dies without a possibility of resurrection. The power over this brooding man is shown by the force with which his fingers crush against his bowed forehead. Oswald and Challoner! Had he found the connecting link? Had it been—could it have been Edith? The preposterous is sometimes true; could it be true in this case?

He recalled the letters read to him as here in that room of his in Brooklyn. He had hardly noted them then, he was so sure of their being forgeries, gotten up by the police to mislead him. Could they have been real, the effusions of her mind, the breathings of her heart, directed to an actual O. B., and that O. B., his brother? They had not been meant for him. He had read enough of the mawkish likes to be sure of that.

None of the allusions fitted in with the facts of their mutual intercourse. But they might with those of another man, they might with the possible acts and affections of Oswald, whose temperament was wholly different from his, and who might have loved her, should it ever be shown that they had met and known each other. And this was not an impossibility. Oswald had been East, Oswald had even been in the Berkshires before himself. Oswald—why, it was Oswald who had suggested that he should go there—go where she still was. Why this second coincidence, if there was no tie—if the Challoners and Oswald were as far apart as they seemed and as conventionalities would naturally place them? Oswald was a sentimentalist, but very reserved about his sentimentalities. If these suppositions were true, he had had a sentimentalist's motive for what he did. As Orlando realized this he rose from his seat, aghast at the possibilities confronting him from this line of thought. Should he contemplate them? Risk his reason by dwelling on a supposition which might have no foundation in fact? No. His brain was too full—his purposes too important for any unnecessary strain to be put upon his faculties. No thinking. Investigation first. Mr. Challoner should be able to settle this question. He would see him. Even at this late hour he ought to be able to find him in one of the rooms below, and by the force of an irresistible demand learn in a moment whether he had to do with a mere chimera of his own over-wrought fancy, or with a fact which would call into play all the resources of a hitherto unconquered and undaunted nature.

There was a wood fire burning in the sitting room that night, and around it was grouped a number of men with their papers and pipes. Mr. Brotherson, entering, naturally looked that way for the man he was in search of, and was disappointed not to find him there; but on casting his glances elsewhere, he was relieved to see him standing in one of the windows overlooking the street. His back was to the room and he seemed to be lost in a fit of abstraction.

An Orlando crossed to him, he had time to observe how much whiter was this man's head than in the last interview he had held with him in the Coroner's office in New York. But this evidence of grief in one with whom he had little, if anything, in common, neither touched his feelings nor deterred his step. The awakening of his heart to new and profound emotions had not softened him toward the sufferings of others if those others stood without the pale he had previously raised as the legitimate boundary of a just man's sympathies.

He was, as I have said, an extraordinary specimen of manly vigor in body and in mind, and his presence in any company always attracted attention and roused, if it never satisfied, curiosity. Conversation accordingly ceased as he strode up to Mr. Challoner's side, so that his words were quite audible as he addressed that gentleman with a somewhat curt:

"You see me again, Mr. Challoner. May I beg of you a few minutes' further conversation? I will not detain you longer."

The gray head turned, and the many eyes watching showed surprise at the expression of dislike and repulsion with which this New York gentleman met the request thus emphatically urged. But his answer was courteous enough. If Mr. Brotherson knew a place where they would be left undisturbed, he would listen to him if he would be very brief.

For reply the other pointed to a small room quite unoccupied which opened out of the one in which they then stood. Mr. Challoner bowed, and in another moment the door closed upon them, to the infinite disappointment of the men about the hearth.

"What do you wish to ask?" was Mr. Challoner's immediate inquiry.

"This. I make no apologies and expect to answer nothing more than an unequivocal yes or no. You tell me that you have never met my brother. Can that be said of the other members of your family—of your deceased daughter, in fact?"

"No."

"She was acquainted with Oswald Brotherson?"

"She was."

"Without your knowledge?"

"Entirely so."

"Corresponded with him?"

"Not exactly."

"How, not exactly?"

"He wrote to her—occasionally. She wrote to him frequently—but she never sent her letters."

"Ah!"

The exclamation was sharp, short and conveyed little. Yet with its escape, the whole overfolding of this man's hold upon life and his own fate went down in indistinguishable chaos. Mr. Challoner realized a sense of relief, though the experient upon his countenance had not wavered, nor the stalwart figure moved.

"I have read some of those letters," the inventor finally acknowledged. "The police took great pains to place them under my eye, supposing them to have been meant for me because of the initials written on the wrapper. But they were meant for Oswald. You believe that now?"

"I know it."

"And that is why I found you in the same house with him."

THE BEREAVED FATHER EXPRESES SYMPATHY FOR OSWALD.

"Providence has robbed me of my daughter. I shall ask your brother to take her place in my heart."

(Posed by Messrs. Sheun and Gallagher of "The Rosemaid" Co.)

"It is. Providence has robbed me of my daughter; if this brother of yours should prove to be the man I am led to expect, I shall ask him to take that place in my heart and life which was once hers."

A Word to Women on Health Matters

Women are generally careful about the state of their health, and they are apt to make good use of remedies known as disease preventatives. Germicides and antiseptics are included in this class, but the greatest care should be exercised in using any which contain poisons, unless prescribed by a physician.

By reason of its absolute safety and its beneficial results, physicians generally have strongly recommended Tyree's Antiseptic Powder. It is unequalled as a preventative of contagious diseases, unsurpassed as a douche and highly efficacious in avoiding infection, healing diseased tissues, ulcers and delicate membrane passages. Ideal and delicate for deodorising sick rooms and general disinfecting purposes. A twenty-five cent package makes 2 gallons standard solution. Sold by druggists everywhere, or send your doctor or send for our booklet. A. S. Tyree, Chemist, Washington, D. C.

New York, July 11, 1911:—"For about four years my face has been affected with pimples and blackheads. My face broke out so badly that I thought I would never get cured. After trying all sorts of remedies which claimed to heal my face, I could not get any good results, so I sent for a sample of Resinol Soap and Ointment, and after giving them a few trials I noticed that my face was getting a little better. So I got a large cake of Resinol Soap and a jar of Resinol Ointment, and after using them for about three weeks they healed my face so that it is clear and smooth again. TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Trading Tone Improving and Stocks Advance

By W. H. ROSS.

STATE STREET, Sept. 17.—Midday—Most stocks were higher this morning in the Boston market, which opened firm and with a good range. Wolverine advanced more than three points during the first hour and there were fractional gains for Franklin, Indiana, Hay Consolidated, Arizona Commercial, United Fruit, Old Colony, Hancock, North Butte and East Butte. Butte & Superior and Chino a shade lower.

Loaning rates for stocks in Boston this morning were: Steel, 3 per cent.; Amalgamated, 3½ per cent. bid; Lake, 5½ per cent.; North Butte, 3 per cent.; Am. Tel., 4 per cent. bid; Copper Range, 5½ per cent.; copers generally, 5 per cent. bid.

Loaning rates in New York were for Steel and for others 4¾ per cent., with demand very limited.

Big Market Opens Strong.

The New York market was strong at the opening, with Canadian Pacific leading the advance. Its early gain was 1⅜. Reading sold ¾ higher within the first fifteen minutes. Gains by other stocks were: Steel Common ¼, American Smelting ⅝, Erie common ½, Erie preferred ⅜, Southern Railway ⅝, Southern Pacific ⅝, Pennsylvania ¾, Union Pacific ½. Strength in Reading resulted mainly from an absence of supply of gold incident to leaving of Canadian Pacific for foreign account caused further upturn in this issue at the end of fifteen minutes, the aggregate advance being 2%.

The early weak Tuit and irregular.

There was not much movement in American stocks in London, but relatively they were the firmest group.

Cotton Firm at Start.

Cotton was firm at the start in the New York market and the advance of from 8 to 10 points was partly attributed to a condition report placing the status of the plant at present at 70.1, a decline of 8.1 points in the last two weeks. There was also a good trade demand from Liverpool. These influences induced considerable covering, and overshadowed weather conditions in the belt, which were favorable in the main.

Latest About Copper.

When the London copper market opened today spot was 1s. 8d. lower and futures unchanged.

The week opened without any great selling of the metal, but the price is not easily firm at 17⅜ cents a pound, but belief that an advance in the price is imminent seems to be widespread. Producers say that the consumers cannot expect the output to continue at the record-breaking August rate, although they admit that September productions will be found very large. The red metal is being consumed at an enormous rate and how all who need stock for next month will be supplied is a question. Thompson, Towle & Co. say: "Most of the companies have sold their October copper, all they can possibly deliver, and yet there is a big consumptive demand which has not yet been met for that month's delivery, and in the interest there is get this week or it is feared in well informed quarters that consumers may bid prices up on themselves, in which case 20 cent copper would not be surprising, even though undesirable. The leading copper interests believe that 17⅜ cent copper is justifiable, and while they are not desirous of seeing it higher, they may be unable to prevent it."

Financial News in Brief.

Newman Erb has denied the report that the Pennsylvania road is seeking control of the Pere Marquette.

Four million dollars in gold bullion was received in London from South Africa yesterday and $3,000,000 was bought for use in countries other than England. The Bank of England has not been called upon to supply any money for outside account.

The crop movement is greater than was ever previously known at this season of the year.

Early figures in regard to bank responses to the call for statement of condition on September 4 by the comptroller of the currency indicate that interior banks were well prepared for crop moving, and that may be able to get along quite well without calling upon New York institutions to any great extent. Reserves this year appear to be well above the legal limit.

During the previous gold importation movement, which took place in 1910, $13,000,000 was brought to this country.

With Wolverine at 75 it would be 42 points below the high of this year and 75 below what it sold for in 1910, when copper metal was bringing less than 14 cents a pound. The present selling movement is attributed to the July decline in the price of the metal.

It is believed in the West that there is little danger of a frost which could seriously damage the corn crop before the full moon on September 26, and the crop should be front proof by that time.

After the United States Supreme Court resumes its sittings on October 14, a number of decisions which will have stock market effect will be in order.

The average legal reserve of Boston banks is .3 per cent. higher than their actual reserve .8 per cent. higher than a week ago. Seven of the sixteen banks are stronger than last week in legal reserves and ten in actual reserve. Two banks are below the 25 per cent. legal reserve, against two below last week.

The sub-treasury gained $1,763,000 from the New York banks yesterday and since Friday have gained $4,237,000.

President Brown of the New York Central road, who recently toured the West, says that a very serious car shortage and congestion is almost certain.

The growth of the trade in Canada is reflected in the increase of Montreal bank clearings. For the week ending September 12, they totalled $58,847,893, a gain of $13,861,465 over the total for the corresponding week in 1911.

HEALTHY TWIN DIES WITH AILING SISTER

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—A remarkable illustration of the affinity between twins is found, say physicians of Bayonne, N. All that the family physician could say was that the heart simply had stopped beating without apparent cause.

CARDINAL AT BIG FUNERAL

Despite the fact that he is on his annual retreat at St. John's Seminary in Brighton, Cardinal O'Connell came into the Mission Church, Roxbury, this morning to be present in the sanctuary at the requiem mass said at the funeral of John J. Kennedy, a respected and public spirited citizen, who died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital Saturday night in his seventieth year.

Mr. Kennedy was a pioneer high class harness maker of Boston and later in life was an extensive real estate operator. He was a generous benefactor to the Catholic charities of Boston, and was an active member of the Holy Name Society and of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul.

The cardinal was attended by Rev. Arthur T. Connolly of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Jamaica Plain, and Rev. Fr. Kenael, C. S. S. R.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor Splaine, rector of the Cathedral, was also present in the sanctuary.

Nuns of the orders of Notre Dame and of the Sisters of Charity had seats among the invited.

The funeral was from the residence of Mr. Kennedy, 1 Mercer street, Dorchester, No. 406 Centre street, Jamaica Plain.

The bearers were Thomas Sproules, Richard Lane, Thomas F. McGrath, Hugh Horgan, Benjamin Kricker and Thomas Welly.

The Reasons Which Impel David I. Walsh to Support Governor Foss for Renomination and Re-election Are Good Enough for Every Democrat

The reply of David I. Walsh to the officers of the Trainmen's Union, in which he declared that he proposed to support Governor Foss for renomination, was a manly and statesmanlike utterance. From the beginning of the activity of those misguided men who are attempting to deprive of a third term the most successful leader their party ever had, and to repudiate the best administration their party ever gave, and to scoff at the best appointments from a Democratic standpoint a Governor ever made, from the beginning of the noisy activity of these short-sighted gentlemen, the position of Mr. Walsh had been unusually hard to bear.

The great service which Mr. Walsh rendered to the party last year on the stump and at the councils, by voice, purse and judgment, made nearly every thoughtful Democrat believe that when Governor Foss was through, Mr. Walsh's turn to lead the party ought to come next.

Governor Foss indicated his desire to retire to his private business this year. Under normal conditions Mr. Walsh would naturally have accepted the opportunity to become the party leader a year sooner than he anticipated.

But Mr. Walsh has shown in many ways that he places party success and party principles above the gratification of his temporary desires. He realized that the political situation gave hope, for the first time in several generations, of carrying the Commonwealth by the Democratic party for President as well as for Governor.

The importance of giving the electoral vote of Massachusetts to Governor Wilson and Governor Marshall overshadowed every personal ambition.

Mr. Walsh knew that Governor Foss defeated the UNITED Republican party twice in this State; that he avowed principles well abreast of the progressive spirit of the times, and had been faithful to them in office, AND THAT HE HAD OPENED UP A WIDER FIELD FOR PUBLIC SERVICE AND PUBLIC HONORS TO EVERY CLASS OF CITIZENS THAN ANY OTHER GOVERNOR WHO HAD PRECEDED HIM.

Mr. Walsh knew that during Governor Foss' administration more progress had been made toward justice to the workingman than in any equal preceding period.

Mr. Walsh knew that Governor Foss aided in the legislation which will bring the Grand Trunk Railroad to Boston, and thus helped to break down the New Haven Railroad monopoly, which is now throttling New England business interests.

Mr. Walsh knew that the Governor refused to permit the West End Street Railway to extort from the people of Boston a perpetual charge of $125,000 a year—an extortion which had been assented to by the joint Board of Rapid Transit and Railroad Commissioners.

Mr. Walsh knew that the revelations of the Lawrence strike proved to all men that Governor Foss was right in the contention he had been making for years, that high protective tariff does not benefit the workingman, but that in the factories which enjoy the HIGHEST protection, the workingmen are paid the least.

Mr. Walsh knew that the Governor had caused the mill owners to surrender in the Lawrence strike by telling them that he considered them to be in the wrong to attempt to deprive their working people of the benefits of a fifty-four-hour law which was passed during his administration, and that if they did not yield to the fair demands of strikers, he would withdraw the troops from Lawrence.

Mr. Walsh knew that the employers were deprived, for the first time in the history of Massachusetts, of that powerful engine of injustice to workingmen on a strike, which is called the "INJUNCTION," by which strikers were found guilty and sentenced without trial by jury, without limit of sentence, and without right of appeal, all by one judge who might be especially selected to do the work on account of his well-known prejudices.

Mr. Walsh knew that this anti-injunction bill was advocated by Governor Foss on the stump, passed during his administration and signed by him just before the Lawrence strike.

IT WAS THE PASSAGE OF THIS BILL WHICH REQUIRED THE OPPONENTS OF THE STRIKERS TO TRUMP UP A CHARGE OF MURDER AGAINST MR. ETTOR IN ORDER TO GET HIM OUT OF THE WAY. BEFORE THE PASSAGE OF THE ANTI-INJUNCTION LAW THEY WOULD HAVE HAD AN INJUNCTION ISSUED AGAINST ALL THE STRIKE LEADERS, AND COMPELLED THEM EITHER TO ABANDON THEIR EFFECTIVE LEADERSHIP OR GO TO JAIL. And the Ettor murder charge method will probably never be repeated.

Mr. Walsh knew that Governor Foss reorganized the Board of Arbitration which gave a decision favorable to the Boston Elevated strikers, and that both as the largest stockholder in the Elevated railroad and as the Governor of the Commonwealth, he aided the cause of the strikers with all his personal and his official influence.

Mr. Walsh knew that the Governor by his timely veto of the western trolley merger bill arrested the attempt of the New Haven Railroad monopoly to seize the street railways in more than half of the entire area of Massachusetts, an event which would have portended untold evil to this Commonwealth.

Mr. Walsh knew that during Governor Foss' administration the Workingmen's Compensation act was passed, a law which helps injured workingmen so much that former President Roosevelt has recently publicly declared it should be taken as a model in the nation.

All these facts made it clear to Mr. Walsh that Democracy's unconquered Governor was by far the best man to lead the party in this critical contest, which involved not only the control of the State government but the control of the government of the nation.

Therefore, Mr. Walsh did not hesitate to step aside himself, not for a moment believing, if Governor Foss was willing to run, that any Democrat could be found in Massachusetts who would seek to deprive the party of the advantage of Governor Foss' strength.

When Mr. Walsh says that he will support Governor Foss, he speaks from a vantage ground occupied by no other man, for the reasons which compelled him to support the Governor compelled him also to give up the ambition of becoming Governor himself.

The AMERICAN honors the decision of Mr. Walsh and holds that the reasons which make him believe that Governor Foss is the best candidate for the party and for the Commonwealth are absolutely sound reasons.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

"MR. HEARST THE HIGHEST AMONG PUBLIC JOURNALISTS"

Editor Boston AMERICAN.

Dear Sir—In Mr. Hearst's absence I wish to thank him for his admirable letters in London, addressed to the British public there. It is apparent to me that he stands high among public thinkers, the highest among public journalists in this city. Instead of establishing a foreign newspaper to keep his self-esteem company, he uses the press that is there and secures a large not a miniature, circulation.

His standing on the Panama Canal will "whip into line" the British press in New York, whose free trade sophomorism would sell this country back to the heirs of George III. An American free trader is generally an immature man.

It will not be long, I think, before our moneyed men discover that Mr. Hearst is redeeming the Jacobite and Jacobin parasite press work of this great city as, may I add, Mr. Roosevelt is teaching the people to think outside the dissolving area of newspapers now.

"THE AMERICAN IN A DISTINCT AND EXCLUSIVE CLASS"

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Your paper has unquestionably maintained the fairest possible attitude toward the various political aspirants and parties now lining up for the great election. There is, perhaps, not another set of papers in the country which have treated all sides and factions alike; i. e., printing the real facts concerning each contestant and issue and publishing impartial irreproachable editorials. The AMERICAN is in a distinct and exclusive class.

Mr. Hearst to British Press on Honor of United States

LONDON, Sept. 17.—William Randolph Hearst writes a column letter in the London Express replying to English press criticism on his exposition of America's position in the Panama question. After answering the newspaper comments in detail he continues:

As for myself, a Home Rule American, please believe I am not quite as yellow as I am painted and am only immoderate in opposition to injustice and intolerant in the presence of untruth.

I confess quite frankly that I employ such powers of publicity as I have for the purpose of accomplishing reforms, and that I use them at all times as forcefully and effectively as I possibly can.

Indeed, I sedately believe that the noblest and most important function of journalism is fearlessly to condemn what is bad in the attempt to reform it, and freely to praise what is good in the effort to encourage it.

Great Sentimental Importance.

In the pursuance of that policy I have criticised many matters in my own country and some things in England only with the sincere desire of stimulating the public sense to a realization of the necessity of improving conditions and achieving progress.

In international affairs, I believe, as I have said, that my country is actuated by the highest motives and is inspired by the fundamental principle of equal rights and universal justice, and I support this enlightened foreign policy with an earnestness born of sincere conviction and patriotic devotion.

But confidence in my own country and affection for my own people do not prevent me or other Americans from entertaining a genuine regard for the people of Great Britain if only the English newspapers, by a little moderation, will permit us to do so.

This Panama Canal question is of great sentimental importance to the United States, but of absurdly small importance to Great Britain. To allow it, therefore, to interfere in any way with the cordial relations existing between the people of the United States and Great Britain would be most unfortunate.

Advises More Consideration.

In a better understanding between the people of the United States and the people of Great Britain, in the harmonious co-operation of such great nations for righteous and unselfish ends, lies one of the most potent possibilities for the advancement of civilization for the establishment of universal peace and the attainment of the altruistic aims of humanity.

Therefore, I cannot but advise a little more consideration on the part of the English press for the sensibilities of the people of the United States, a clearer comprehension of the fact that our sense of honor and our devotion to higher ideals is quite as great as that of any people upon the face of the globe, and, finally, a realization that abuse of us does not constitute to us or to others a convincing argument.

Our Educational Systems Earn and Pay Dividends

Second Article Written for the Boston American

By George W. Perkins

GOVERNOR JOHNSON of California, Progressive Vice-Presidential candidate, in his address before the Progressive Convention at Syracuse, said:

"THIS IS A PARTY OF MEN AND WOMEN UNAFRAID."

What prompted Governor Johnson to use that expression? What is the real significance underlying it? Just this: We, as a people, here in the United States, are no longer a race of men and women who are afraid.

Fear is based on ignorance and superstition, and we have spent one hundred and thirty-five years and billions and billions of dollars since our Declaration of Independence in a titantic struggle to dislodge, uproot and dissipate both, with the result that we have thrown off one superstitious yoke after another and have become unafraid.

We have been coming out into the open as individuals and thinking for ourselves—making up our minds for ourselves.

This is not the sixteenth century; it is the beginning of the twentieth century.

The fears, the superstitions, the timidity, the ignorance of the sixteenth century have no place with us in the opening days of the twentieth century.

We, as a people, have spent many billions of dollars on primary education alone in this country, and many more billions on high schools, private schools, colleges, etc.

All this has been done to build up our educational system.

At the same time we have spent many billions in building our railroads.

We expect our railroad systems to earn and pay dividends. Why should we not expect at least as much of our educational system?

As a matter of fact our educational systems do earn and pay dividends, and the dividends are getting bigger and bigger all the while. We have now reached a point where we are gathering in the results—results not only from the education that comes through book learning, but the education that comes through travel, through contact with people, through intercommunication.

You hear many people saying just now, "What is all this hubbub about? Why this sudden demand for a larger and more direct participation in municipal, State and national political affairs?"

The answer is that you have first to sow the seed and then reap the harvest, and it sometimes seems a good while from seeding time to harvest time, but progress is being made just the same.

The crops grow gradually, but with good soil, good seed, proper cultivation and average rain and sunshine, the day is bound to come when you must garner in your crop or allow all the work, all the care, all the expense, all the blessings of rain and sunshine to go to waste. There are many cloudy days; there may be either too much rain or too much sunshine; but finally the crops come on with a rush and the day of the harvest arrives. The time of actual garnering comes almost to a day, and the wise farmer knows almost the exact hour when he must put in the sickle or lose his crops.

The same process applies to many affairs of life, and the Progressive party is indeed made up of men and women unafraid—unafraid because, through the educational seed that has been sown in good soil, they know that the time has come to harvest the crop, and the Progressive party is the machine that proposes to garner it at the hour when it is ripe for the harvest.

In place of very many good people in this country being alarmed at what the harvest is going to be, they should rejoice, because we are moving forward, not backward. It is distinctly and in all respects a progressive movement, and progress that is real is nothing to be afraid of. It is something to be proud of; something to welcome and not repel.

I regret that absence for several days and a very great pressure on my time made it impossible for me to furnish articles last week for the space so generously offered by Mr. Hearst; but unless some unusual and unforeseen thing occurs to prevent I shall contribute articles three times a week from now until November.
